ALL POWERS NOW JOIN IN MOVEMENT TO DISARM

American Public Opinion Is Optimistic Over Coming Conference

ATTACK BY TIMES

Declares Neither Lloyd George Nor Curzon Should Attend

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 13.—Both official and public opinion in the United States is optimistic as regards the Pacific Conference, which, it is anticipated, will again bring America into the forefront of international politics.

As for the London press, the Times concurs in observing that the conference will mark the resumption by the United States of its rightful place in the community of nations. It says that America is keenly interested to know whether the British Empire will be represented by Ministers or by delegates drawn from outside the various Cabinets.

The Times attacks what it describes as the concerned calls for Mr. Lloyd George and Lord Curzon to cross the Atlantic, and says that neither of them is fitted, either by position, temperament or past career, to take a direct part in the negotiations.

ALL HAVE ACCEPTED

London, July 13.—The Daily Express is officially informed that all the Powers—Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, and China—have formally accepted President Harding's invitation to a Conference.

It is now considered that there is small prospect of a preliminary Pacific conference being held shortly, but it is reported at Washington that the first conference will be fixed for Armistice Day, November 11.

BRIAND TO ATTEND

Paris, July 12.—The Government has accepted President Harding's invitation to take part in the disarmament conference.

The Matin announces that the Premier, M. Briand, will attend the conference in person.

It says that France will not hesitate to associate herself with every effort to put an end to the ruinous competition in naval construction, but that she will only be able to disarm militarily if it is possible effectively to control Germany and Russia.

SMUTS IS INVITED

London, July 13.—It is understood that the Washington Government has invited General Smuts to attend the disarmament conference.

The British delegation to the conference, as forecasted, will comprise Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. A. J. Balfour and General Smuts.

It is officially announced in Washington that Japan has accepted President Harding's invitation.

SPECIAL MESSAGE

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Washington, July 12.—It is understood that President Harding will probably deliver a special message to Congress within the next day or two. The President has spent much time on the message while on a camping trip to Chesapeake Bay, from which he has just returned.

JAPAN IN FAVOR

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 12.—Such representative Japanese business men as Viscount Shibusawa and Mr. Raita Fujiyama (chairman of the Tokio Chamber of Commerce) heartily welcome President Harding's proposal of an international conference on disarmament, which coincides with their own proposal to invite the co-operation of British and American chambers of commerce in advocating, together with the Japanese chambers, the urgent need for a reduction of the excessive expenditure on armaments.

Senate Asked To Postpone Act On Soldiers Bonus

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, July 12.—President Harding has urged the Senate to postpone legislation providing for bonuses to former soldiers in view of the essential need for economy and in the interests of the Government and the revival of commerce.

Note Redemption Begins; Chinese Bank Assn. Pays

Payment of specie for the Banque Industrielle de Chine notes began at the Chinese Bankers' Association yesterday when a large number of holders thronged the premises. Several experienced cashiers of the local Chinese banks made the payments.

Silver was paid for notes under $5 in value while sums over $5 and below $500 were exchanged for Bank of China or Bank of Communications notes. Sums above $500 were paid with checks on the two Government Banks.

None of the Government or Municipal bureaus is accepting the notes.

GREEK COLLAPSES AT INQUEST OVER BODY OF WIFE

Adjournment Taken As Man Is Unable To Testify Regarding Mysterious Death

The inquest begun yesterday over the body of the Russian woman, wife of a Greek subject, who was found dead in the country off the road to Woosung on Tuesday, had to be adjourned when the woman's husband, who is detained in connection with the matter, collapsed in court.

The inquest was opened before Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Yui, after the French authorities had refused recognition in the matter, and the husband, Theodore V. Georgacopoulos, gave evidence of identification. He stated that his wife was 28 years old and a native of Krasnyarsk, and that he is 39, a merchant and living at 20 Dixwell Road. At this point he was seized with some sort of fit and was unable to proceed. Detective Sergeant Schmidt said that the man was a morphia addict and it was believed that enforced abstention from the drug, since his arrest, caused the breakdown. The Assessor ordered that he be examined by a doctor and that the inquest be adjourned. A post mortem examination is to be made. Superficial examination of the body disclosed some faint marks on the throat, but owing to the rapid decomposition it

Glittering Lantern Parade Opens Observance Here Of French National Holiday

Elaborate Program Of Events Today Will Start With Salute To Tricolor At Consulate Followed By Receptions And Games

Observance of the French national holiday—always one of the great annual events in Shanghai—opened last night with a gorgeous and spectacular lantern parade and is to be continued through the day today with a series of ceremonies and varied events of a program that will continue through the evening.

Beginning with the salute to the French colors at 8 o'clock this morning at the French Consulate, today's events will consist of receptions, games and sports at the French Park and a general celebration at the French park tonight.

PAGEANT OF LIGHT

The pulsing scintillating stream of light and color that flowed last night between banks of massed thousands of spectators in the streets of the French Concession was a spectacle long to be remembered. It swept along to the music of a dozen bands and as far as the eye could reach along Avenue Joffre when the colorful tide surged through this channel the scene was one blaze of light arising from the long line of illuminated floats and from the myriad bobbing lanterns borne in the hands of the marchers.

An awesome monster with eyes of blazing light gleaming from a monstrous scarlet head led the pageant writhing from one side to the other along the line of march. Behind it under their conical spiked headgear a detachment of Annamite policemen marched along with military precision and after them came the wonderfully illumined floats into which fire engine trucks and apparatus of the departments, of both the International and French Settlements, had been transformed.

These units of the two fire departments fairly blazed with electrical illumination and from several of these powerful search lights played up and down and over the upturned faces of the throngs. In electric light, in waving streamers and in numerous floral effects the predominating feature of the Tricolor was in evidence.

CHINESE MARCHERS

Following after the huge engines of the fire departments marched long ranks of fire fighters bearing lanterns and after these were some thousands of marchers of various Chinese organisations bearing flags and twinkling lanterns with their bands of music.

Such an array of beasts and birds and reptiles as paraded before the wondering eyes of the onlookers never was collected together in any zoo on the planet. Bears, tigers and elephants plodded through the streets with glittering electrical eyes and it might be added too that a number of these marvellous animals carried lights as well on the tips of their tails. A stately overpowering rooster, some fifteen feet tall, that marched along sedately was merely one of the wonderful things of the menagerie that made its appearance.

BALFOUR TAKES UP CUDGELS FOR NATIONS LEAGUE

Tells Dominions Of Huge Power For Good Far Outweighing Cost

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 12.—The text has been published of the speech by Mr. Balfour to the Dominions representatives at the Imperial Conference last Friday, on the subject of the League of Nations, in which he strongly defended its existence.

After reviewing the difficulties militating against its effective operation immediately, and particularly the financial handicap, Mr. Balfour declared that under the Parliamentary system the League's expenditure would always present an object of attack. The League would perish if the consideration of individual benefits to its members prevailed.

He enumerated its useful activities since its creation, which "the old diplomacy" was unable to undertake as a common international effort, notably the labors towards stopping the illegitimate traffic in opium, arms, women and children, the promotion of an international court of justice, and the conference on international transit.

He then dwelt on the other spheres in which the League had been profitably engaged, including the mandates, and the negotiations for the settlement of international differences, and insisted that, if the League were dissolved, a new peace treaty would be necessary to devise the machinery and to carry out the duties with which it was entrusted.

Praise Official Who Approves Christian Work

(China Press Correspondence)

Changchow, Ku., July 13.—The city seems to be pleased with the rule of Magistrate Yao who was dismissed when the Anfu party lost out some months ago but the local gentry petitioned his return and so we are glad he is back again. He is progressive and though not a Christian himself he has done many things to indicate that he is more than a well wisher of the work of the church.

He has living in his home one of his sisters-in-law who is a widow with three children. Recently one of these children was stricken with typhoid fever and though everything possible was done to aid her recovery she passed away a few days ago. The Magistrate sent his card with his request that the Chinese pastor and the writer come to the home for a Christian service. Of course this was at the request of the mother of the child who is Christian. The child herself was an earnest inquirer.

We went and at 11:00 p.m. in company with a number of the Christians in the city a beautiful service was held. The next day the remains were taken to the Methodist Church and there we held another service which was largely attended.

The Magistrate himself in company with the Dean of the Commercial Department of Futan College, brother of the child's mother, following the remains, walked several li to the place where the coffin was stored. More than this the Magistrate made a very appropriate talk at the funeral service of his niece.

U.-BOAT MEN FACE TRIAL FOR FIRING ON LIFEBOATS

Germans Themselves Ask Prosecution Of Two Minor Officers

BOTH TRUCULENT

Thirteen British And 52 German Witnesses At Hearing

(Reuter's Service)

Leipzig, July 14.—The trial of the German submarine lieutenants Dittmar and Boldt, has begun here. They are charged with murder in firing at the lifeboats containing the survivors of the hospital-ship Llandovery Castle. This case differs from the previous trials in that the proceedings are being taken at the instance of the German prosecutor.

The British Government had only demanded the trial of the submarine commander, Patzig, who has fled and is believed to be in Danzig. The German prosecutor, after examining the British evidence, ordered the arrest of Dittmar and Boldt.

Thirteen British and 52 German witnesses have been summoned, including Admiral von Trotha. The British mission, headed by the Solicitor-General Sir Ernest Pollock, is attending the proceedings.

The Court today was more crowded than at any previous trial. Boldt was in mufti and Dittmar in naval uniform and wearing many de-

THREE POWERS INTERESTS TO BE CONSIDERED

Lloyd George Outlines Basis On Which Cabinet Is Planning Treaty

(Reuter's Service)

Shanghai, July 13.—A correction has now been received, completing a passage, which could not be issued yesterday owing to mutilation, in the report of Mr. Lloyd George's speech in the House of Commons on the Anglo-Japanese Treaty. The passage is as follows:—

"The deliberations of the Imperial Cabinet had," he said, "been guided by three main considerations: the first was Japan, an old and proved ally, our agreement with whom was now of 20 years standing, and had greatly benefited not only Great Britain and Japan, but the peace of the Far East.

The second was China, a very numerous people of great potentialities, who esteemed British friendship highly and whose interests Great Britain desired to assist and advance; the third was the United States, a people the closest to British aims and ideals, with whom there was for the British people not only a desire and an interest but a deeply-rooted instinct to consult and co-operate.

"The Imperial Cabinet was unanimous on these considerations. The object of the discussions was to find a method of combining all these three factors in one policy that would remove the danger of heavy naval expenditure in the Pacific with all the evils thereby entailed, and to insure the development of all legitimate interests in the Far East."

At the conclusion of his speech, the Prime Minister stated that the Government had made the same communication to China as to the other Governments.

Science, He's For It

"YES, doctor," agreed baby John William, after a careful adjustment of his gold-rimmed spectacles, "my opinion in the matter coincides perfectly with your own." And then, after a deliberate peek through the microscope: "The old days of haphazard bringing up of children should indeed be relegated to a dim and dismal past. Science—that's the cry of our present day and age. And in the name of the Babies' Mutual Aid and Benevolent Association of Chicago, I want to say I'm strong for it." Little John is an inmate of St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum, Chicago, and was one of the participants in the recent Baby Week campaign.

Chinoiserie Lends Color In Retraite Aux Flambeaux

By Bruce Hopper

EN bas la Bastille!

So says every son and daughter in every French village on the night of July 13, when the Retraite aux Flambeaux files by. And so thought every Chinese of the thousands who packed the streets last night to watch the annual lantern parade.

China's tribute to France, on the eve of the national holiday, is a classic on the Shanghai calendar. One misses the picturesque effects of military turn-out, the flags of many nations, and the pyrotechnique display of Paris. But there are lanterns galore, tissue paper monstrosities, fire departments, and rumpety fan fare of coronets. In a word, there is Chinoiserie.

To a newcomer last night's parade showed the neighborliness of machine-built civilisation and old China in Shanghai. The fire autos with their colored electric lights contrasted with the menagerie, new science and old imagination.

All the animals of the Jungle book were there, and many unidentified members of the insect tribe. Mark Twain's leaping frog was hopping over time, and a fat polar bear winked his eyes, and wagged an electric light at the end of a four-foot tail. The elephant was drunk, as usual and rapped his trunk around the band stand at the finish. Wired lobsters poked their pinchers at the bat, and unmentionable monsters of the slime dangled huge tentacles over the heads of the crowd. The rooster was there in the flesh, ready for the funeral. Fish, dragons, and everything else Chinese completed the razzle dazzle, tissue paper Chinoiserie.

DIFFERENT IN PARIS

"They order this matter better in France," said the versatile Lawrence Sterne. But wherever a French procession takes place the finishing touch is certain to be the Marseillaise.

The eve of July 14 in France is the official time for cutting loose on the three-day celebration. No one would think of working on the day after. The thrifty peasant cracks open a bottle of old Burgundy handed down from his grandfather's cellar, and the banker of Avenue du Bois treats his guests to rare Napoleonic brandy. It is the time of wiping out grudges, of pledging together the continued success of the republic.

Perhaps the most memorable July 14 celebration ever known was the year after the armistice. The treaty of Versailles had been signed two weeks previous, and all of Europe seemed to crowd into Paris to see the march of triumph. Every cafe had its special musicians, and gay crowds danced in the streets.

AND WRECKED TAXIS

Early in the evening the Retraite aux Flambeaux brought great applause for its novelty. Long lines of poilus carried live electric wires upon which were strung bulbs to make the lumiere en rideau. Banners lighted up with the names of battles, of great commanders, and cities taken back into the fold of the motherland, such as Strassbourg and Metz, were cheered as they passed.

The hit of the parade was a representation of the taxi battle of the Marne, showing General Gallieni rushing troops to the battle line in Paris motor buses.

Costumes of France were seen everywhere. Alsatian maidens danced with garcons clad in the velvets of the Pyrenees. Everybody was shouting, everybody was gay, everybody was kissing everybody else. Taxis were wrecked, windows broken, but nobody cared.

It was France and her allies celebrating a great victory.

Kobe Strikers Threatening To Take Over Dock

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Kobe, July 12.—The Kawasaki strikers are threatening that, unless their demands are accepted today, they will take over occupation of the dockyard tomorrow. This would be an unprecedented step in the history of the Japanese Labor movement.

The prefectural authorities are in constant communication with the Home Office and also with the Military authorities, with a view to meeting a possible emergency.

It is stated that if the workmen forcibly occupy the dockyard the military authorities will proclaim martial law in the surrounding district. The situation is critical.

Council Proposes Revision Of Salaries Schedule For Employes Of Lower Ranks

Modification Of Salaries Commission's Report Planned; May Be Special Ratepayers' Meeting

Municipal salaries increases affecting the lower paid grades of employes and involving added expenditure of Tls. 75,300 for the current year, generally along the lines recommended by the Salaries Commission, are proposed by the Council and announced in today's Municipal Gazette.

Against the expenditure thus incurred is cited savings already made, or anticipated through postponements in other programs of expenditure, to the total of Tls. 93,620. This includes Tls. 37,000 in respect of "deferred staff engagements and savings in respect of long leave postponements" in the Police Department and over Tls. 50,000 in the Public Works program, affecting, principally, reconstruction and maintenance of sewers and road maintenance. Tls. 5,000 is lopped from the Tls. 10,000 allocated to the venereal diseases prevention program. The Electricity Department is not included in the estimates.

EFFECTIVE JULY 1

It is proposed that the revised salaries schedule have effect from July 1, instead of as from January 1 as recommended in the Salaries Commission's report which was turned down by the ratepayers, and the Council will proceed immediately upon the revision unless the ratepayers indicate a desire to assemble in special meeting to further discuss the matter.

If, on or before July 26, therefore, fifty or more ratepayers signify in writing to the acting Secretary of the Council a desire that such a meeting shall be held, no further action will be taken until the decision of the meeting is known.

The Council, in the lengthy statement published in the Gazette, expresses its realisation of the imperative necessity of salaries revision.

"The Council considers that it would be a step fraught with the gravest possible consequences to ignore the recommendations of the Salaries Commission," the announcement states, and cites instances of resignations and dissatisfaction in the various departmental staffs and the ever increasing difficulty of securing efficient servants at the wages now in effect.

RESIGNATIONS INCREASING

"During the past year," the statement continues, "the Council has been obliged to deal with an ever increasing list of resignations, due to the fact that the employes in question have found more remunerative employment elsewhere; but a more serious factor in the case is the profound state of dissatisfaction that exists in certain grades, with the prospect of further resignations as agreements expire, and the concomitant circumstance that replacement by suitable men at present rates cannot be effected."

It is not proposed to increase the salaries of any heads of departments, but the Municipal body states that while it would be glad to adopt the suggestion that no person drawing over Tls. 300 per month should have an increase it is necessary for considerations of discipline, etc., to insure that no man in any rank draw more than the lower paid members of the rank above him. It is proposed to allocate Tls. 67,000 to employes being paid Tls. 300 or less; Tls. 5,500 to those receiving between Tls. 300 and Tls. 400 and Tls. 2,300 to those receiving over Tls. 400 per month.

OUTLINES PROPOSALS

Referring to the Salaries Commission's recommendations the Council states:

"It is found, upon close examination, that these, after recounting the minor benefits granted to employes, most of which refer to that occasional relief from expenditure involved by hospital attendance, medicines, etc., passage money at intervals of five years, and disablement allowances, which necessarily come but once in a lifetime, conclude with recommending revised scales of salaries.

"These revised scales are found to comprise, in most cases, the division of the pay applicable to each post into a minimum rate, plus a housing allowance in order to make a differential calculation according to the single or married condition, thus giving the total pay for the post.

"The Council, having in mind the urgent necessity for economy, has decided that these revised scales should be adopted, but pared down to the extent of adoption of the single housing allowance for all instead of the married housing allowance.

"The term housing allowance is, however, a source of general misconception, since it is not really proposed to grant housing allowances at all, unless in exceptional circumstances; this term in the Salaries Commission recommendation refers merely to the above indicated division of actual 'pay' into what shall be considered pay proper and what proportion shall be considered rental.

"Working out the calculations on these lines it appears that the pay of each member of the staff, except in the case of the lower paid employes, is approximately the pay now drawn. There are, however, exceptions, particularly in the ranks of the higher paid outdoor staff.

WOULD TAKE TLS. 75,300

"The total increase on the budget figures involved by the Salaries Commission's recommendations, as modified by the adoption of the single housing allowance and calculated from July 1 of this year, amounts to Tls. 75,300 which includes the recommended provision for children's allowance of Tls. 15 per child, but up to two only, instead of three, while in the case of the Band, the figure is $10 in view of the fact that bandsmen receive a proportion of all monies received in respect of private engagements, and are allowed to give private music lessons."

Noted Aviator Is Burned To Death At End Of Flight

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 12.—Mr. Harry Hawker, one of the two airmen who made the pioneer attempt at a direct trans-Atlantic flight but fell into the water near Ireland, was killed while flying at Hendon today through his aeroplane bursting into flames when he was alighting.

The death of Harry Hawker is an incalculable loss to the aviation world. Foremost in daring he was ever first among pilots to fly experimental machines. His long service with the Sopwith company as a test pilot gave him perhaps the greatest number of hours any flyer ever has had in the air.

It will be remembered that his failure to fly across the Atlantic was due to motor trouble. He was forced down to the water, about two thirds of the way between Newfoundland and Ireland, and was picked up by a Danish vessel not equipped with wireless. During the five days required for the ship to reach port the world was held in suspense by conjecture as to his fate.

Among his many experiments, which made for progress in mastery of the air, was the stunt of dropping his detachable landing carriage upon taking off from Newfoundland. Inventors today are experimenting with devices which will decrease the air resistance of the landing carriage.

Mixed Court Jottings

The case involving funds of the Yunnan government held in local banks was again before the Mixed Court yesterday when Mr. J. Em. Lemiere made application that Lee Hung-lung, holder of a check for Tls. 162,051.78—to be divided between Yunnan forces in Yunnan and Hunan—be restrained from using more than half of the money. An injunction restraining the Asia bank from making payment on the check had been dissolved on Tuesday, Lee being required to put up Tls. 80,000 security. The court, Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Yui, refused Mr. Lemiere's application and also made an order accepting the security proffered by Lee.

A Russian named Pavil Kravchenko appeared in the Mixed Court yesterday on the charge of putting into circulation a counterfeit $50 American bank note. Police testimony was given to the effect that the note was presented by a small boy and converted into Mex. at an exchange shop at 312 Broadway. When the exchange broker subsequently presented it at another shop the note was found to have been raised from $1 to $50. The number of the note had been erased and re-engraved. The boy, A. Hakan, was located and gave the name of the accused. The accused denied that the note presented in evidence was the one he had sent to be changed. Evidence given by the boy and the defendant was contradictory and the court remarked that it was plain that one or both were lying. The case was remanded one week to allow further investigation.

A shop assistant employed at 164 North Szechuen Road, charged in connection with the sale of opium, forfeited $100 bail by failing to appear yesterday. A warrant was ordered to issue for the arrest of the proprietor of the shop. Another forfeiture of bail amounting to $100 occurred when the case was called of a man charged with running an opium den at 319 North Szechuen Road. Two men arrested as patrons of the place forfeited $10 each. A woman convicted of operating a den at 772 Market Street was fined $20.

The Chinese charged with the murder of a Sikh trooper following the rioting at the New Woric last month, and of the eight other men charged in connection with the rioting, will come up for special hearing in the Mixed Court next Monday. Mr. R. C. Faithfull will prosecute and counsel for the defendants include Messrs. Krisel, Rodger, Goldring, Ponson Chui, Ting, Newman and Kentwell. The man charged with murder has been identified by the Chinese policeman who was wounded at the time of the trouble.

A coolie was fined $25, with the alternative of two weeks' imprisonment, for driving a motor car without a permit.

STERLING RATE

Gorgeous Lantern Parade Opens French Celebration

of "Vive La France" as the companies of school boys marched along and after them came detachments of Boy Scouts and then a company of smiling girl students carrying branched standards from which depended glowing lanterns.

The great blaze lighting the thoroughfare for many feet at the end of the parade was from the decorated street car which was one mass of colored incandescents.

AT FRENCH PARK

The pageant turned from Avenue Joffre into Route Voyron and marched then to the French Park where it broke up. For the celebration Route Voyron between Route Vallon and Rue Lafayette had been incorporated as a part of the park and at the entrance to this portion of the thoroughfare the parade went through a wonderful reproduction in electric light of the entrance to the French Bastille. Roadways and paths in the French Park and in the grounds of the Cercle Sportif Francais were lighted with colored lights and the whole area was transformed into a shadowy wonderful fairyland of glittering color with even the lagoons amazingly illuminated with long strings of incandescents.

Today's ceremonies open with the formal salute to the French colors at the French Consulate at 8 o'clock this morning.

The ceremony at the Consulate will be followed by another ceremony consisting of the distribution of awards to members of the French Fire Department. Receptions will be held at the noon hour at the French Consulate and then at the Cercle Sportif Francais and at the French Club and in the afternoon the program of games will be staged beginning at 3 o'clock. The electrical illumination will again blaze in the evening at the French Park when a ball will be held at the French Club while dancing and a band concert will go forward outside.

TODAY'S PROGRAM

The official program of events for today is as follows:

8 a.m. Salute to the flag, French Consulate.

11 a.m. Reception at Consulate.

11:30 a.m. Reception at Cercle Francais.

Ezra Bankruptcy Case In British Court

More than half a million taels, proof of claim to which had been rejected by the official receiver for Judah Isaac Ezra, bankrupt, was the subject of an appeal in the British Supreme Court yesterday by the Netherlands Trading Society and the Nederlandsche Indische Handelsbank. The claims were for Tls. 0,632 for the Netherlands Trading Society, and for Tls. $495,-34 for the Nederlandsche Bank. Gambling in exchange contracts were suggested during the hearing and such financial dealings were likened to the books making on a race course. The gaming act was brought up for discussion during the hearing.

Mr. H. Lipson Ward appeared for the appellants and Mr. A. L. Dickson as official receiver. Mr. Peter Grain, Assistant Judge of the British Court heard the case.

Mr. Ward said both the appellants were Dutch institutions—one, the Netherlands Trading Society, and the other Nederlandsche Indische Handelsbank. They both appealed under section 25 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1914, from the official receiver's decision rejecting their proofs in the bankruptcy of one Judah Isaac Ezra. The sums involved were very large. However, the assets in the bankruptcy were practically speaking nil, and the matter came before his Lordship really as a question of principle.

IMPORTANCE OF CASE

As it involves the law applicable to transactions of this particular nature which were carried on by a large number of the foreign banks in Shanghai the question involved was one of the very greatest importance, Mr. Ward said. As recorded the Netherlands Trading Society, on March 21, they obtained judgment against the debtor for the sum of Tls. 90,632.87 and costs upon a promissory note which was dated December 2, 1920. In due course on the debtor being adjudicated bankrupt, the Society put in a proof for that sum in respect of the judgment debt.

On April 14, the official receiver gave them notice rejecting the proof, on the ground that the contracts between the debtor and the Society were void as being within the section of the Gaming Act of 1845. He would say at once that it was competent for the official receiver and for that Court although the debt was a judgment debt to go behind it in order to look into the circumstances and to inquire as to the consideration.

Mr. Ward, continuing, said that before the transactions at present under consideration the debtor had not had any dealings with the Society, at any rate for a considerable number of years. On August 1 he sold to the bank two sums of £25,000 each T. T. price 5/7 December delivery, the broker being a gentleman named Toeg. On August 7 he sold £25,000, at 5/10 1/8, the same delivery and the same broker. On August 19, he sold a further £10,000, at 6/3, again the same delivery and broker.

EXCHANGE BUSINESS

Counsel then dealt briefly with the nature of exchange business carried on by the banks in Shanghai. The business of course was, he said, enormous, and in considering it in his submission they must regard pounds, francs and taels just as though they were commodities. They could be bought and sold for the moment or for future delivery. The practice of the banks and of these particular banks was this: that they did their best and usually succeeded in making their sales and purchases for each day balance. He did not say they always made them balance exactly, but they must keep making a balance, otherwise they would be gambling themselves and running very grave risks.

Judge Grain asked:—Do you mean to suggest they do not gamble or run risks?

Mr. Ward—They may at times. If they think exchange is going up or down they may hold up their buying or selling for a couple of days, but from time to time if they are carrying on a legitimate banking business they must balance up their sales and purchases because their business is to make their profit in the difference between their buying and selling rates.

Mr. Ward said it was just the same as buying wheat for future delivery. He bought at one price and sold it to someone else at a slightly different price. His profit was the difference: that was not gambling. In this particular case, on the days when the contracts were entered into, the bank sold against the purchases which they had made.

The Court was aware, he said, that any person coming along to the bank who had either bought or sold sterling or silver could demand and obtain from that bank delivery of the gold or the silver.

FORM OF ACCOUNT

Mr. Ward then referred to the form of the account made out to customers which did not actually take up their purchases or deliver their sales because, he said, he thought that form might have influenced the official receiver in rejecting these proofs. If he were to buy from A, who failed to deliver, he could then go out and buy against A and the damages A must pay would be the difference between the contract price and the market price.

The banks in Shanghai kept a book, he said, which for want of a better word he would describe as the "position" book. It showed the purchases and sales on each day, so that when they had bought from anyone on any particular day there was a corresponding sale to some one else. If the customer did not want to carry out his contract, and the banks found it necessary, they bought or sold against him as the case might be. What he had to pay them, the ordinary measure of damage was the difference between the contract price and the market price on the due date. On the due date coming along, the bank would buy from another bank or from a private customer against the original customer.

CONTRACTS FOR £85,000

Proceeding, Counsel said the form of that difference note came about because of inter-banking transactions.

There were a great number of these purchases and sales, and when they had to deliver a convenient method of settlement was to set off, he said.

Going on with the Netherlands Trading Society case, counsel said that there were sales on the dates of Mr. Ezra's transactions against his contracts. The management had changed about that time and the new management in looking over their accounts found that there were contracts to the amount of £85,000 against Mr. Ezra.

They thought it would be better if they had some security, so in the beginning of October they asked him to come and see them at the bank. When he came they asked him to give security. He said he could not, and then he was asked to tell the bank honestly whether he was in a position or would be to pay sterling on the due date as otherwise the bank would like then and there to minimise their loss and cover at once, Mr. Ward said.

If they had done so at the moment, their loss would only have been about Tls. 20,000, Mr. Ward asserted. Of course they could not do so without the consent of Mr. Ezra. He assured them that he would be in a position to fulfil his bargain in December and said he had other covering contracts.

ASKED FOR PAYMENT

On November 23, the attorney continued, the acting agent of the bank wrote to Mr. Ezra with reference to his contracts, asking by which bank the £85,000 would be paid, and adding that if no sterling were received he would be obliged to buy at the prevailing rate, holding Mr. Ezra responsible for any difference. On December 2, the bank did buy £85,000 against him and wrote to him informing him that in connection with his failure to deliver they had bought at 4/5⅛ and asking him to pay the difference by remitting compradore order for Tls. 94,732.87.

If no satisfactory arrangement was come to, they notified Mr. Ezra, the matter would be placed in the hands of their lawyer. Mr. Ezra came to the bank the same afternoon and said he would pay Tls. 1,000 a month, and gave them a promissory note for the amount due. On the following day, he came to the bank and paid Tls. 4,100 on account. This, of course, was long before the bankruptcy.

With regard to the Nederlandsche Bank, their proof was for the sum of Tls. 495,131.37.

Judge Grain—No promissory note?

Mr. Ward—No, and no judgment. Counsel continued that their proof was rejected on June 1 for the same reason. The proof was in respect of exchange contracts for £25,000, £50,000, £10,000, £30,000 and £50,000. There was only one difference between the two cases. In this instance, the debtor had never done any business at all with the bank. When Mr. Toeg came in with the first contract, being a well known broker in Shanghai, he was asked whether Mr. Ezra was all right. He said that he was, and that he had covering contracts with the Asia Bank.

REFUSED EXTENSION

Again the bank sold against these contracts on the same day. Their profit was the difference in the exchange rate. £3,768 was all that the bank had overbought in September. They had no kind of speculation themselves. At the request of the bank, the debtor came to see them and said he was not in a position to fulfil the contracts at their due date, and he asked for an extension of one year. That was at the end of February. The extension was refused.

On March 5 Mr. Ward said that Ezra wrote to the bank again stating that he was not in a financial position to carry out his contracts and informing them that recently he had unfortunately suffered enormous losses in cotton and exchange.

He would do his utmost to carry out his obligations at any time he was in a position to do so. Shortly before the petition was filed the bankrupt again called at the bank and told them he was about to file his petition. On the morning it was filed, counsel was instructed to sue the debtor for the difference between the then market price and the contract price. If they had desired, the bank could have waited until the due date, but they were quite right in taking the then market price. The difference due in this case was a very large one.

BOUGHT AGAINST DEBTOR

Between April 26 and 29 the bank bought against the debtor, Mr. Ward continued. To the ordinary individual these banking transactions were extremely complicated, and particularly the exchange business. In this case, as the bank had over-sold yen, they actually bought yen and converted it into sterling at the prevailing exchange rate. These were the facts and he did not suppose there would be any serious dispute about them.

Mr. Ward then proceeded to deal with the law applicable and opened by quoting Schwabe and Branson on "the Law of the Stock Exchange":

"A very large number of dealings on the stock exchange are of a speculative nature; persons buy and sell shares for a future date, with the hope of making a profit by the rise or fall in price and often without the least intention, or even ability, either to pay for the securities, or to deliver them, but meaning to re-sell or repurchase before the time for delivery arrives. This method of doing business, is by no means confined to stocks and shares, but is of every day occurrence in almost all commodities; and, as far as the distinction between speculation and gaming is concerned, it makes but little difference whether the commodities are actually paid for and held with a view of selling again at a profit, or whether the matter is arranged by a re-sale before the time for delivery. Such dealings are perfectly legitimate. Gaming and wagering contracts, on the other hand, are not real dealings at all; they may take the form of purchases and sales, but they are, in fact, mere bets on the market price of commodities at a future date. For a contract to be a gaming and wagering contract, there must not only be no intention on the part of either party to deliver, or take delivery of the commodities, but also no obligation on either to do so; there must be an agreement or understanding that all the buyer has to do is to receive from, or pay to, the seller the difference between the price of the bargain and the price at some future date."

BOTH MUST GAMBLE

To get a gaming contract, counsel submitted, they had to find that both parties were gaming. It did not matter that one was gaming, if the other was not. There had to be mutuality, as in every other contract, he argued.

In order to make it a gaming transaction, there must be added to the original contract a separate bargain between the parties that the contract would not under any circumstances be carried out, but that some difference to be arrived at on a future date should be paid, Mr. Ward submitted.

It was legitimate for any one of them to speculate in exchange. They could, as so many other people did, buy or sell far beyond their means, if they could find people sufficiently generous to deal with them; but that was not sufficient. There had to be between them a definite bargain, whether express or implied, that the transactions would not be carried out under any circumstance. Counsel suggested that it might have been absolutely necessary for them to have the sterling. From time to time they entered into contracts for sale which they must carry out if required to or they remitted large sums of money to Europe. They must act on the assumption that if they required it people who had sold to or purchased from them would carry out their bargains. Otherwise there was an end of banking.

Moreover, they could not ask every broker what his principal wanted the money for, Mr. Ward argued.

CITES OTHER AUTHORITIES

Mr. Ward, after quoting other authorities, said that all the case with reference to stock exchange transactions had to do with bucket shops that had never bought or sold a share on behalf of any client. In the bucket shop cases it was always a case of gambling against the customers. It could never be suggested that the great banks of Shanghai carried on a business of the nature of those bucket shops. Brokers and jobbers were taken out of the gaming act, the broker because he worked for a commission and the jobber because he was bound to deliver.

MR. REITSMA TESTIFIES

Mr. Jan Reitsma, accountant to the Netherlands Trading Society, said that debtor's indebtedness to his firm was in respect of exchange contracts. At the end of October witness was afraid Mr. Ezra would not be able to deliver £85,000 and he had to inquire whether he had been gambling or not. There was a showing at the time and that looked like increasing before December. Mr. Ezra told them they need not worry, that he did not know exactly his position. If they had not that assurance, the Society would have closed the contracts then and their loss would not have been more than Tls. 20,000, Mr. Reitsma said.

Witness then went through the books showing their purchases and sales balancing.

Where do you look for your profit?—Only in the difference between our buying and selling rate.

Would you have taken delivery of the sterling if he had required you to do so?—Yes.

In answer to counsel, witness said if customers were not bound to carry out their bargains the banks could not do business.

In answer to the official receiver, witness said they knew who Mr. Ezra was, as he had a proxy from Mr. Edward Ezra. They did not know exactly his financial position, but he had the name that he was rich. He had better position than a clerk in his brother's office.

Continuing, witness said they did not usually ask if customers were gambling; if the bank thought they were they would have nothing to do with them.

In answer to Mr. Ward, witness said that his bank's approximate business at that time would be about Tls. 400,000 to Tls. 450,000 a month.

BANK MANAGER ON STAND

Mr. H. J. Vermey, manager of the Netherlands Bank, also went through Mr. Ezra's dealings with his bank, as stated by counsel. He said Mr. Ezra told them that if they forced him to go into bankruptcy he would rather file his own petition. He also said: "Give me time, I will act the

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Save the Babies.

Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realise that of all the children born in ivilised countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tincture and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

Three small Chinese boys who heard the woman scream were responsible for the finding of the body and the arrest of the man. Running toward the spot, which was about 200 yards from the river at a point beyond the toll gate and hidden from the road by a high patch of reeds they saw the woman lying in the shallow water which forms a marsh extending nearly to the river bank. One of the lads called to some countrymen to assist in capturing the man, who was proceeding toward the river and had boarded a Chinese boat when a policeman and the farmers arrived. The boatman was ordered to return and did so. Georgacopoulos was taken to the Chinese police station at Ying Ziang Kong and the Settlement authorities were notified. Chief Detective Inspector Burnside and Detective Sergeant Gabbutt going to take charge of the man and visit the place where the body lay.

Georgacopoulos was taken to the French Mixed Court yesterday morning but was denied recognition and was then taken to the International Mixed Court, where he was ordered detained pending the outcome of the inquest. He had not been living with his wife for about two weeks and is said to have admitted that there was a quarrel just before her death, though he denies injuring her in any way. His story is that she wished him to engage in an opium smuggling venture, that he refused, quarreled with her and left her.

He then proceeded to make a long speech in praise of Patzig's heroism, which the President twice interrupted as being irrelevant.

SHANGHAI-QUIROS GAME ON THIS AFTERNOON AT 5:15; GUNBOAT LEAVES TOMORROW

Shanghai-Japanese Games On Tap For Saturday And Sunday; Possibility Of Ninth Cavalry And Osaka Diamond Team For Series Here Shortly

THE baseball game between Shanghai and the gunboat Quiros, which was scheduled for Saturday afternoon, has been moved up to today, by reason of the unexpected departure of the vessel tomorrow for up-river ports. The game today will be played at 5:15 p.m.

The sailing of the Quiros tomorrow leaves Saturday's baseball date open. It gives opportunity for some fast matchmaking. And matchmaking these days when the Navy has practically deserted Shanghai is no easy task.

Manager Ross hopes to stage games Saturday and Sunday at the Race Course with the local nine opposing one or two of the best Japanese teams which play regularly at Hongkew park. There are some strong aggregations in the Hongkew district. The opinion has even been voiced that there are some stronger than the Shanghai Baseball Club. It would be well to take on the best Japanese nines in the city and find out just who is who in local baseball.

There is a possibility that the cruiser Wilmington may get into port in time to fill in one of the week-end dates. The boat now is coming down the Yangtsze for repairs. Whether or not it will reach port in time to play Saturday or Sunday is as yet however a matter of conjecture.

It might develop soon that the Osaka Diamond team, which played here in the Olympic and open games in June may be brought back to Shanghai for another series in the not distant future. The team is now in Tsingtao playing a series, according to Tientsin papers, and, if all goes well they will be booked for play in Tientsin. If practicable they may be booked for a series in Shanghai.

Another possibility for near future baseball is the arrival in China next week of the Ninth Cavalry team, which will visit Tientsin for a six game series, three with the Army, and three with the Tientsin civilians. It is possible that the Cavalry team may play a series here.

About fifteen local players were out at the Race Course last night for a nice workout. The men took turns at the new batting cage. The two pitchers in uniform served them up for a little limbering up, and finally the regular first-line infield got working on some real fast practice.

The Quiros men had practice early in the afternoon. They have been working out for the past several days in a back lot on the Yangtszepoo Road water front. They came to the Race Course yesterday with a new confidence for the final practice before today's game. They promise a close score today in their farewell appearance.

Lowest Figures Since The Champion Of Roughtown Started Secret Training

BY "BUGS" BAER

Dear Sir: Don't overlook the little peaceless town of Clinkers, Alaska. That is the place where Tex Rickard made a million dollars just by exhibiting a toothpick to the astonished placer miners. My man, Dangerous Dan McGrew, put the chill on your Roughtown champ. The Clinkers children played marbles with hand grenades. Daily exercises for the kindergarten class was carrying pigiron.

Herpicide Joe was another gent famous for his hair-raising stunts.

Ann Hizer Bush gave a birthday party and got a beautiful present of two cauliflower ears.

Yours until I get rational again,

PETE STONE.

Strange thing, but Dangerous Dan McGrew oozed into Haverstraw and subpoenaed Gink for a job as sparring partner. Gink accepted on suspicion. Herpicide Joe is also up at Haverstraw. Gink now has a sweet string of punching bagsters up at his camp. They include:

The man who swatted Billy Paterson.

Dangerous Dan McGrew.

Casey, the Lion.

The Glutt.

James Boys.

Fred Beavo.

That is a fairly good sewing circle of knuckle philanthropists. A collect message from Manila states that Aquinaldo is on his way west to peg out Gink for the championship. At midnight last night there was a timid knock on the door. When The Glutt came up out of the cellar to investiga e, there was Francisco Villa with his hat in his hand. Francisco applied for a job as sparring partner to Gink, but later changed the request to a position as office boy to the hen coop.

At dawn a strange looking bird deployed into Haverstraw. He wore a zinc crown and announced that he was the Kaiser. He got a job as valet to the town cuckoo clock.

The camp is now complete. Gink put in his second day in active training by visiting the Floral Show at Madison Square Garden.

Today he will put in his road work on Broadway, dashing from one Huyler's candy store to another. Monday the champ will attend the Carnegie Hall lecture on slippery elm wood and its medicinal properties. He is finally down to hard work. His training is secret, nobody being admitted with a two-bit medallion.

Admiral Sims sent a message of congratulation to Gink and also a request for his autograph on a five-dollar check. Same being the price of the Ad's book on how the Ad won the war. The Glutt and Gink stuck in a grueling two hours playing checkers. After a rubdown and a message, Gink called for his limousine and tore around the suburban roads. There is a sentiment around camp that The Glutt will try to place the slap on Gink and challenge the winner of July 2nd in his own behalf.

He is being carefully watched by Gink's trained flea.

UNIFORMS RARE WITH KIDS IN U.S.; ALL PLAY BALL

Dealers Report Heavy Sales Of Baseball Equipment Except Suits

Young America is playing baseball this year in its worst clothes or its best; uniforms are rare on sand lots and playgrounds. High costs have put the much-desired shirt, pants and cap in the class of luxuries.

The uniform outfit that sold for $3.50 before the war was marked at $8 when the season opened this year. The latter price prevailed last summer and while sales decreased from pre-war figures, the demand was fair. But after father's wages went down or stopped altogether last fall and winter, the allowance for sonny's sports was cut with the result that the call for uniforms fell off abruptly this spring. Although the season is still young, prices have already been reduced once in most sporting goods houses here.

But while other items in the boy ball players' equipment are also in excess of pre-war prices, there is a heavy demand for them. The game itself is being played by more boys than ever, according to dealers in athletic goods, and bats, balls and gloves are being bought in large numbers.

LITTLE INTEREST AT ROWING CLUB WEEKLY SWIM

Few Competitors Show In Tank; No Water Polo Game Possible

Last night a very poor attendance was recorded at the Rowing Club weekly swimming meeting, both as regards competitors and spectators.

It was found impossible to organise a water polo game, this being the third or fourth time that teams could not be arranged at the Wednesday night meets, though the item "Water Polo" appears on the schedule as to take place each Wednesday evening.

It is disappointing to those who turn up solely for the purpose of having a game, and the explanation doubtless being that the Rowing Club are so easily in the lead at water polo here in Shanghai, the idea has been formulated that a team of free lances be got together to enter the local league against all comers, and this is likely to materialise.

The following were the results of such events as did take place last night: ...

J. B. Brown 1 sec.	3

RUTH WALLOPS THIRTY-FOURTH HOME RUN OF SEASON; SEVEN AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

New York Yankees Slugger Is On Trail Of 75 Circuit Clouts With Season Little More Than Half Gone

BABE Ruth of the New York Yankees, the greatest slugger of all time, made his 34th home run of the present season on June 12, according to the United States Navy Radio message received in Shanghai yesterday.

Babe made the 34th circuit clout in St. Louis with Davis pitching.

Last year when he broke his former record of 29 homers by driving out a total of 54 for the season, the Big Babe made his 34th circuit clout on July 24th, just a dozen days later than his pace of the current year.

Up to July 12 of 1920 the big batter had registered but 27 homers, an exact half of his total for the season.

Therefore Ruth is seven home runs ahead of his record for the half season mark of 1920, and has now an average of 68 circuit hits for the season, or fourteen more than his record buster of last year.

He has set his mark for the present season at 75 four-base wallops, and though he is a trifle behind his own appointed schedule he still may do it.

It is reported that the Babe is getting $30,000 from the coffers of Ruppert, Houston and company this year, and that he will receive a bonus of $20,000 if he makes one more homer than he did last year. And if he reaches the 75 mark, he may get an additional compensation for his efforts.

The Bambino Kid also makes some extra money by playing in exhibition games after the season is over, receiving $500 for each game. He is in the moving picture business, too. And to think that Ruth, seven years ago, was an inmate of St. Mary's Industrial School, recognised by the city of Baltimore as a reformatory. He spent 12 years in that institution before he became the greatest drawing card that baseball has ever produced.

THAT BACK PAIN OF YOURS

Have You Tried The Remedy That Cured Mr. Reed?

"Exposure to cold and rain while in a run-down condition brought on an attack of lumbago," says Mr. Ricy M. Reed, an employee of the Southern Pacific railroad who lives at No. 3206 San Franco street, Los Angeles, Cal. "There was a dull aching pain across the small of my back. This pain was constant and became especially acute when I stopped over. The pain was worse during damp weather. My appetite was poor and this, coupled with loss of sleep, gradually reduced my strength.

"I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a newspaper and decided to give the remedy a trial. After five days' treatment I noticed that the pills were helping me for the pains were less severe. I continued the treatment for seven weeks at the end of which time the pain was entirely gone. I can eat a hearty meal now and have gained strength. I strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all in need of a tonic."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are obtainable from your own druggist, or direct by mail, post free, at $1.50 per bottle, $8 for 6 bottles, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai. Write to the same address for free book, "Building Up the Blood."

Sores from Wrist to Elbow
"Completely Healed"
Our portrait is of Mr. John Kidd, of 17, Mill Lane, Kilmarnock, Scotland, who writes:—"My right arm became covered with sores from wrist to elbow and was useless for over two years. I tried different ointments and so-called cures, but they never did me any good. Then I tried your 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and the sores soon began to heal up and power began to come back to my arm, so I persevered with the Mixture, and after having four bottles am glad to say my arm is completely healed up and I have now the full use of it." In a further letter over a twelvemonth later Mr. Kidd writes: "I have had no return of my complaint; my arm is still as sound as a bell and never troubles me in the least."

Foreign Airmen Barred From Going Chinese Territory

A movement to stop flights by foreign airmen over Chinese territory adjacent to the Foreign Settlements of Shanghai has been started by the Chinese Government. Maj. W. R. McBain and Mr. E. E. Fresson, both of the Royal Air Force are named as the "Foreign Airmen."

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs, acting upon the request of the Aeronautical Department, has instructed Mr. C. F. Hsu, the Foreign Commissioner, to conduct a thorough investigation and make a report on foreign airmen in Shanghai who are conducting flights here either for pleasure or for commercial purposes.

The ministry's dispatch maintained that none of the foreign pilots had secured government sanction to fly over Chinese territory and their action constituted an infringement on the air rights of China.

Banknote Issue Held Illegal By Chinese Official

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 9.—The Ministry of Communications has notified the Bureau of Currency and Banking that the recent issue of notes by the Russo-Asiatic bank for use in the Chinese Eastern Railway zone, is not now legal because the bank failed to notify the railroad authorities.

The notes cannot be accepted by the railroad authorities. It is understood that the acton of the Ministry does not reflect upon the standing of the bank but is a technical matter. The Ministry did not say whether the issue would be legalised as soon as proper notification was made.

Kuling Is Thronged And Hundreds Fail To Obtain Houses

(China Press Correspondence)

Kuling, July 5.—The popularity of Kuling as a summer resort is attested by the fact that already more than 300 houses are open, meaning that about 1,500 people are resident on the hill top. This season will doubtless break all previous records for the number of visitors. In spite of the fact that 22 new houses were built during the winter more than a hundred people have been turned away on account of insufficient accommodations. Lots in West Valley have been selling rapidly and a number of new houses will be built this summer. Russian Valley, too, has undergone much improvement and is rapidly becoming one of the most popular sections of Kuling. The delightful swimming pool there undoubtedly adds to its attractiveness.

Kuling is more than a summer resort. It is becoming more and more apparent that it is almost an ideal year-round residence. It promises to become a splendid winter settlement. More and more people who retire from business or missionary work are finding that they can remain in China at Kuling with comfort and profit. The invigorating winter climate while cold, is not severe. Two schools for foreign children were maintained during last winter. Besides the pupils more than a hundred other foreigners remained throughout the cold season.

American Mission Finishes Survey Of Chita Conditions

(Dalta News Agency)

Chita, July 7.—Just before the departure of the American Mission, the correspondent of the Dalta Agency had an interview with Colonel Davis, the Military Attache of the Mission, who expressed his gratitude for the welcome accorded the mission by both the people and the government of the Far Eastern Republic.

"We were able," said Colonel Davis, "to investigate fully the political, economic and social life of the Far Eastern Republic. We have spent our forty days in Chita to great advantage in pursuing our task of getting a true picture of the real situation and life in the republic. Here we have been convinced of the false information regarding the Far Eastern Republic supplied by the Oriental papers. Even during our stay here we have received some of them which are filled with stories of uprisings at Chita and other wild rumors.

"Personal knowledge of the life in Far Eastern Republic enables us to give a true picture of the conditions which, I believe, will contribute to the strengthening of friendly relations between America and the Far Eastern Republic."

Asked why the mission was not dispatched from America but from Japan, Colonel Davis answered that it was done in order to save time as America thought that Tokio was nearest to Chita. He said that the visit of the mission was to give correct information to the American Government. Colonel Davis asked the correspondent to supply him in the future with Chita papers so as to enable him to keep in touch with the real situation in the Far Eastern Republic.

The American Mission of Mr. Abbott and Colonel Davis passed Harbin on the 5th instant on its way to America via Vladivostok.

Mr. Stevens, Chairman of the Interallied Technical Commission of the Chinese Eastern Railway, is opposed to the transfer of the protection of the railway to the Japanese.

Semenoff Men Plan Overthrow Of Government

(Dalta News Agency)

Harbin, July 11.—In connection with the appointment of Vasily Ivanoff, Semenoff's agent, as president of the Council of Ministers at Vladivostok the Semenoffites are making active preparations for seizing authority. Reliable detachments of Semenoff's troops were moved towards Nicolsk. Nicolsk was captured by the Semenoff forces, and according to reports, General Smolin is arrested, and General Osipoff is appointed in his place. The Kappel troops in Nicolsk offerred no resistance.

Preparations for a coup are being made in Vladivostok by Generals Blandersky and Kusmin, who have gone over to the Semenoff side.

Warlord Upholds Tuchun Of Hupeh Despite Mutinies

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, July 10.—In settling affairs in Hupeh after mutinies in Ichang and Wuchang, General Chang Tso-lin, of Mukden, has assured General Wang Chan-yuan his whole-hearted support in case any dispute endangering the latter's position on the Yangtze may arise out of the present popular movement by Hupeh people for General Wang's removal.

This was communicated to the Yangtze Super-Tuchun, General Wang, through the special representative whom General Wang sent to Mukden to interview the Manchurian Super-Tuchun evidently for obtaining his support against the Hupeh people's "oust-Wang" movement then on the high pitch.

After the mutinies, General Wang was condemned all over the country. His position was in danger, and therefore he sent several representatives to Tientsin, Peking and Mukden to secure support. His representative to Tientsin is reported to have been given a cold reception by militarists. At Mukden, however, Chang Tso-lin promised him support. Meanwhile Chang demanded munitions from the Wuchang Government Arsenal for use, Chang says, in the Urga expedition.

The Yangtze Super-Tuchun will therefore remain a power in Central China, and perhaps with more undisputed sway. The sufferers of mutinies of Ichang and Wuchang are still working at Peking for his removal.

In the present political game in North China, General Wang seems inclined toward Chang Tso-lin. For years past, Wang has been a pronouncedly cunning fence-rider in all political struggles. Now he seems to be modifying his attitude.

To Discuss Means For Prevention Of Further Rice Crises

The Amalgamated Association of Street Unions, as a result of the recent strike, has called a meeting to take up discussion of means for preventing future rice crises in Shanghai. They wish to obtain opinion as to the advisability of organising a society for obtaining supplies direct from the producing areas.

There are said to be over a hundred rice boats at present in Shanghai which have not dispose of their cargo and fear of its deteriorating is expressed. Sales at the shops have been slow owing to the fact that food contractors, food shops and many business establishments have not yet exhausted the stores they laid in previous to the strike. In consequence the price dropped about 20 cents yesterday.

Ezra Bankruptcy Case In British Court

gentleman and try and pay you off in due course." The amount involved was so large that witness had to take instructions from his head office before buying against Mr. Ezra's contracts. He agreed entirely with what the previous witness had said about the practice of Shanghai banks.

Questioned by the official receiver, witness said he did not think any question was asked as to whether Mr. Ezra was speculating.

RECEIVER'S STATEMENT

The official receiver, before calling Mr. Ezra, said the point on which he joined issue with Mr. Ward was as to whether the banks knew this was gaming, or whether they themselves were gaming. He said he would try to prove they must have been gaming.

So far as the balancing of the books was concerned, he submitted that this was what any "bookie" or commission agent did at home.

He contended that the transactions in this case were "time bargains." The parties knew the position of the debtor and must have known he could not take up sterling or deliver it and that therefore he was gambling on the difference.

They must have known he could not possibly require it for his business, he maintained.

CALLS J. I. EZRA

Judah I. Ezra was then called and stated that he was in the Netherlands Trading Society on behalf of his brother and had never led them to believe that he was anything more than a clerk in his brother's office. The proxy given to him by his brother had been shown to the bank, but not in connection with these transactions, he testified.

The official receiver—Do you know if the majority of non-British banks in Shanghai go in for these transactions?

Mr. Ward—This makes one's hair stand on end. The Hongkong Bank does it.

In answer to Judge Grain witness said he had never had gambling transactions on exchange with any other banks in Shanghai. He contradicted this when questioned by the official receiver.

He then said he had numerous contracts with the banks, in which he intended only to pay or receive the difference. He was never asked if he was speculating. All the banks knew he was gambling, he said.

Mr. Ward—I really object to all this. He can only tell what he told the bank.

Judge Grain—What did you tell your broker?—He knew I was gambling.

The official receiver—Did you tell the broker you were gambling?

Mr. Ward—The question is, what the broker told the bank.

Judge Grain—Why do you say the broker knew you were gambling?—He knew I never had sterling or had any use for delivery of sterling.

The official receiver—Have you ever approached the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank with a view to settling exchange or making sterling contracts?

Mr. Ward—I must object. If the suggestion is that these two banks are not reputable, I will deal with it.

The official receiver—I am not attempting to cast any reflection on the reputation of these banks. I want to show the methods of the bank.

Witness, in answer to the question, said he asked if he would try the Hongkong and Shanghai bank.

Judge Grain—Was the attempt successful or unsuccessful?

Witness—Unsuccessful.

CROSS EXAMINATION

Cross-examined by Mr. Ward:

You have been an extremely wealthy man at one time?—Yes.

And as a wealthy man you were in the same position in your brother's office?—Yes.

You were in the same position when you entered into these contracts?—Yes.

The Court—What is an extremely wealthy man?

Counsel—You have been probably worth Tls. 1,000,000?—Yes.

Mr. Ward—To me at least it is a competence.

Judge Grain—Beyond my dreams of avarice.

Counsel—You were living in Shanghai as a wealthy man?—Yes.

You are not living as a positively poverty stricken individual at the moment? You are living fairly comfortably now? Driving about in motor cars and enjoying yourself?—I am not in the same position as before.

Not quite the same position as when you were worth a million taels?—Not the same.

We will now be serious. You were worth something like a million taels and you occupied a desk in your brother's office?—Yes, I was employed by my brother.

You did not tell anybody at the time these exchange contracts were made that you were not in the same position as when you were a rich man?—No.

You do not suggest that the only people who buy and sell sterling in Shanghai are merchants?—All different kinds of people.

Your brother is a man with a very large business?—Yes.

You have told us it had been shown to the bank?—Yes.

Mr. Toeg is a very senior broker in Shanghai and a man with a very good reputation with the bank?—Yes.

A man they would be likely to trust?—Yes.

Did you ever tell him you have covering contracts?—No, because he did practically all my business and he must know.

How comes it that he told the banks, then?—I do not know.

Are you sure you did not deceive Mr. Toeg in exactly the same way as you deceived the bank?—I never told them.

Do you suggest an eminent broker like Mr. Toeg would go about Shanghai making gambling contracts for you when he knew you were not in a position to pay if you lost?—He did practically all my business. I do not make that suggestion.

Questioned by the official receiver, witness said he did not require sterling. He was settling exchange for gambling purposes only.

In answer to the Court, witness said if the exchange had gone in his favor he would have closed contract and taken the difference. He was dealing with four other banks about the same time. As far as he was concerned, he was gambling on differences.

ELLIS EZRA IS WITNESS

Mr. Ellis Ezra was called and said he had had exchange contracts with the Netherlands Trading Society in 1918.

Mr. Ward objected to further evidence and said the issue in the case was as to a particular transaction between Mr. Judah Ezra and the bank. The transactions with Mr. Ellis Ezra were entirely immaterial, he submitted.

The official receiver said he could prove that banks in Shanghai did gamble on exchange.

The Court—The question is, whether this was a gaming transaction.

The official receiver—I wish to prove that in a previous case the bank did not ask for any sterling, but merely for the difference.

In answer to the Court witness said he probably had thousands of transactions and that in 99 per cent of the cases he merely paid the differences.

Cross-examined: You have omitted to tell the Court that in all those cases you sold as well as purchased?—Yes.

Why did you not tell him that?—I was not asked.

Why did you not tell the official receiver?—It is perfectly clear.

You led him to believe that they are statements of differences?—They are differences.

Do you mean to suggest that if you bought £15,000 and sold £10,000 you had to take the £10,000 in and carry away the £15,000? In these statements where you have sold to and bought from the same bank they have set the transactions off?—Yes.

It is the tael equivalent of the sterling?—Yes.

Witness added that he could have forced the bank to deliver the sterling.

The case then adjourned until this morning.

New Household Tools

By Mrs. Christine Frederick,
The Distinguished Authority on Household Efficiency.

WITH the coming of Summer the housewife needs new tools and appliances with which to do the cooking and housekeeping. There are more vegetables to be pared and strained, cool drinks and frozen dishes to be prepared, and other things which require tools quite different from those in use all Winter.

One utensil which the housewife will use almost every day is a colander or strainer. For washing berries, for straining soup, for making sauces, there is no other device so helpful.

There has just been placed on the market an unusual combination fruitpress and strainer, which is fitted to a stationary stand. This can be clamped to the table to make it stable and prevent waste motion. The stand supports a two-quart bowl of heavy retinned ware, with perforations. Inside the bowl is a paddle-like blade, which revolves as it is turned by a small handle.

The food materials are placed in the bowl (with a pot or other receptacle underneath), and the handle turned. As the paddle revolves the pulp of the food is pressed out smoothly and uniformly. This device will press a half-bushel of grapes or apples in fifteen minutes, will smash the ends of tough asparagus, rice potatoes, strain jelly and do many other things that are particularly necessary in Summer food preparation. When not in use the whole thing can be folded compactly and hung up.

Strawberry hullers are so inexpensive and useful one would think every kitchen would boast one. Still, many do not know of this small 10-cent tool of tin which looks like a pair of small tongs and with which the hulls of berries can be quickly snipped off without staining the hands. It is also used to pick out the small pin feathers of chickens.

Pineapple snips are another great help. They look like a pair of scissors with an enlarged point or cup of tin, which scoops the "eyes" out of the pineapple and other fruit as well.

A glass knife sounds impossible, but there is a large glass knife on the market whose chief value is that it will not stain the fruit it cuts or give it a metal taste.

A pair of asparagus tongs, looking like an old-fashioned candle snuffer, aids in the graceful service of asparagus by lifting it evenly and perfectly from dish to plate.

The knife with corrugated edge which makes butter into small rolls like sea shells, is a practical novelty. It is easier to use than wooden paddles or molds. All that is necessary is to scrape the knife along the print of butter. As the knife moves along it will roll up a small portion, resembling a tiny shell of fluted design.

The various vegetable cutters so well known in French cooking deserve more space in the pantry drawer. These are small, elongated molds from two to three inches in depth and with some fancy design on the end. By pressing them down into the food that is to be transformed it will produce a crescent, flower, star, etc., in a moment.

Pickled beets, bits of green pepper, etc., make most attractive garnishes for salads when cut into these ornamental forms.

There is a combination tool consisting of two small corrugated knives or blades which, when lowered into the food, cut it into a wavy or ribbon-like strip. By turning the same knife in the other direction pieces scalloped all along both edges are produced. The tool is provided with several different knives which will work quite marvelous transformations in the appearance of foods.

A jelly bag resting on a stand and having a ring around it which when pushed down squeezes the juice out, is another interesting and seasonable novelty. The bag can also be rested over a table, to drip, or used for apple sauce and other strained fruits.

An orange peeler is a queer looking blade of metal, with a kind of clip at one end. By passing this blade under the peel the cutting is started, and it is possible to de-rind the entire orange by this method, leaving the rind in the form of a basket or semi-circular shell. This may later be used for jelly molds, etc.

A corn scraper is another odd tool which has six teeth imbedded in it, and which passes over the surface of the cob, splitting the kernels and making it easy to get corn for pancakes and other dishes.

Famous Beauties of Stage and Screen—
EVA LE GALLIENNE.
(Photograph by SARONY.)

Most pantries possess the curved grapefruit knife which enables one to cut around the pulp so cleanly. Such a knife is useful in many other ways, and once you try one you will never be without it.

Then there is the aluminum egg-slicer, which has a harp of wires. These when lowered over a hard-boiled egg cut it into equal, even, unbroken sections for use as garnishes for salads and other dishes.

Another useful device is a prong of wire which permits a cork to be speared after it has dropped down into the bottle. Everyone knows how aggravating it is to try and get out such a cork, but it is most easy to do with this prong, because of the upturned hooks on its end, which catch hold of the cork and bring it out.

The shops are full of these interesting and helpful small tools for the Summer housekeeping season. Many of them might well find a place in Mrs. Housekeeper's kitchen or pantry to help her prepare food more expertly and with less time and effort.

Eating for Beauty

By Lina Cavalieri,
The Most Famous Living Beauty.

LIGHT foods, as chicken, fresh fish, beans, spinach and beets, which contain iron, and stewed fruit, slowly eaten and well masticated, are excellent for the complexion.

A great deal of water should be drunk every day to keep one well, which state a good complexion always follows. Drink three tumblerfuls on rising, and while you are about your morning toilet. Sip, do not gulp it. If you are not thirsty drink it anyway, or, at least, all of it that you can stand. That morning bath for the stomach is imperative. At each meal it is permissible to drink one glass of water, slowly sipping it.

For the work of cleansing the stomach I should advise a half a teaspoonful of soda taken in a wine glass of water every morning. This should be done for a short time only, except under a physician's advice, because too much soda is likely to have an injurious effect on the delicate lining of the stomach.

Pulverized charcoal is also an excellent corrective for the stomach which is tired or rebellious. One teaspoonful every morning and one after each meal is as good as a broom in the stomach.

Sometimes these internal remedies must be supplemented by external aids. One of the best is to moisten coarse cornmeal with milk and, filling the hands with it, scrub the face gently, yet with vigor. The friction opens the pores and relieves the muddy looking skin of the poison which has choked them.

A woman whose skin is as fresh as a girl's confided to me that she would as lief retire without saying her prayers as without ironing her face with ice. This causes the blood to flow to the surface, refreshing and feeding the skin.

Cold cream is needful for most complexions, but not for every one. A good test of your needs is to pat cold cream into the skin and note whether it is quickly absorbed. If so, then the skin is dry and requires daily feeding.

Cocoanut oil, if secured in its pure state, is an admirable skin food. Olive oil feeds the skin well, but some women have a deep-rooted objection to its use because it is charged sometimes with making the skin yellow. The owner of one of the loveliest complexions I ever saw feeds her skin by nightly baths of the following: Olive oil, 2 ounces; almond oil, ½ ounce; benzoin, ½ ounce.

In this case the tendency of the olive oil to make the skin yellow, provided such a tendency does exist, is neutralized by the presence of bezoin, which is a wonderful whitener. The benzoin has still another office, useful to those whose skins have become flabby, and that is as an astringent which draws the relaxed skin back to its old state of firmness and elasticity.

Primarily, the cause of most facial blemishes, next to a lack of personal cleanliness, is indigestion. To remove an effect one should always try first to remove the cause. Most women suffer from some form of indigestion due to one or both of two bad habits. One is eating harmful things, like candy, cake or too much rich pastry, and the other is not drinking enough water.

Large red splotches appear upon the face sometimes, seeming to try to burn their way out. This literally they are trying to do. An excess of uric acid causes this condition, and it is best to consult a physician about a cure, for it is the parent of rheumatism. If a consultation is not convenient then you must put yourself on a careful diet.

Let your breakfast be the most simple, of some coarse cereal or toasted bread, and avoid rare meats, especially beef.

Here are ten things that no woman who has any regard for her complexion should permit herself to eat: Sausages, dried fish, pies, bon bons, puddings, ice cream, beef, except when well roasted, pork, especially ham; oysters, unless one is absolutely certain of their freshness, and hot bread.

Do not think you can overcome your digestive troubles by the bad habit of drinking hot water. Instead of its being an aid to digestion, as so many think, it is a positive hindrance. Granted after a heavy dinner, when the sense of overfulness oppresses us, a cup of hot water, slowly sipped, aids digestion. But this should be used only in emergencies. The regular habit of drinking a great deal of hot water is extremely harmful, for when the stomach is flooded with it the gastric juices go on strike. And the hot water is left to do the work, ineffectively and alone. So the hot-water habit seems to me distinctly a bad one.

Secrets of Beauty

PLEASE suggest something to reduce my bust without being injurious to the health.—MRS. G. S.

I must caution you that a great deal of harm can be done by injudicious attempts to reduce the bust, because many of these methods are likely to cause serious injury to the very delicate glands that are located in this region. Any manipulation or massage of these sensitive parts must be very gentle indeed. Sometimes a daily massage of the breasts with the following astringent preparation will aid materially in reducing their size:

Iodide of potassium	2 ounces
Camphor water	2 ounces
Alcohol	2 ounces

MY shoulder blades stand out very sharply. They make my back so ugly that I get nervous when any one walks behind me. Is there any help for this?—MARION V.

If the shoulder blades are not naturally flat, shoulder braces should be worn to correct this projecting tendency and destroy the round-shouldered effect that spoils the beauty of your figure. These can be purchased in any drug or department store or can even be made at home if desired. A simple remedy for this trouble is to draw the arms behind you, bend them at the elbows and stand with a cane thrust between the elbows and the back. This will be tiresome at first, but after a while you can do it for fifteen minutes or half an hour at a time. Also throw away your pillow and lie with your head and feet on a level.

PLEASE tell me if there is anything that will whiten the face and neck. I don't know whether I have a natural olive skin or it is just tanned. But I am terribly discouraged because I am so dark.—F. M.

You shouldn't be. Brunettes number among them some of the loveliest beauties in the world. It may be that your liver is lazy. This will make your complexion dark and muddy looking. Take long walks and take up a strenuous out-of-door sport. This will stir up that languid organ of yours and make it perform its proper functions. Eat plenty of acid fruits, and to every glass of water you drink add the juice of half a lemon.

PLEASE tell me of a way to remove some Spring freckles without removing all the skin also.—H. B.

For an excessively delicate skin the following simple remedy, if applied faithfully several times daily, will prove efficacious in fading out those freckles:

Powdered borax	½ dram
Sugar	½ dram
Lemon juice	1 ounce

If the above seems too mild, here is another lotion which will take the freckles off and still leave the skin intact:

Muriate of ammonia	¾ dram
Lavender water	1 ounce
Distilled water	4 ounces

Tested Mutton Recipes

TO prepare mutton for cooking carefully remove the caul and the pink outer skin. Do not allow this pink outer skin to come in contact with the part to be cooked.

With mutton serve rice, boiled or browned white potatoes, sweet potatoes, white or yellow turnips, onions, salsify, beans, spinach, carrots, cauliflower, cabbage or turnips.

Any green salad or a combination salad made of bananas, grapefruit, green peppers, pimentoes, tomatoes, etc., goes well with mutton.

Serve fruit salads, coffee or caramel custards, baked bananas, baked pears, berry shortcakes, fruit cups, etc., as the last course of a mutton dinner.

Currant jelly, wild plum jelly, sweet pickles, capers and sour pickles are all good with mutton.

Minced Mutton.

CHOP the meat and put into a frying pan with salt, pepper and celery salt to taste. Dredge well with flour, stir, and add stock or hot water to make gravy. Cook about 5 minutes. Serve hot on toast.

Mutton Rechauffé.

LINE a baking dish with well-seasoned mashed potato. Fill the centre with cooked mutton, cut in small pieces and season well and moisten with gravy or sauce. Cover with mashed potato and bake in oven until delicately brown. Garnish with parsley and serve hot.

Minced Mutton with Tomato.

MIX 3 cups chopped mutton, 3 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon sugar and salt and pepper to taste. Add 2 cups canned or cooked tomatoes and 1 cup stock or water and bring to boiling point. Pour into a buttered baking dish and cover with buttered crumbs. Bake about ½ hour in a moderate oven.

Baked Mutton Chops with Horseradish.

REMOVE the fat from 6 mutton chops and place them in 2 cups of boiling hot stock seasoned with 2 tablespoons chopped onion, ¼ cup chopped carrot, a bit of bayleaf and 2 or 3 cloves. Reduce the heat and cook gently about 45 minutes. Melt 2 tablespoons drippings, add 2 tablespoons flour and blend well. When smooth add the stock in which the chops have simmered and cook until smooth, stirring constantly. Add ½ cup grated horseradish (if dried horseradish is used it should be soaked and then drained before adding to the sauce) and ½ tablespoon lemon juice, and stir until smooth and thick. Pour into baking dish, place the chops in the sauce, sprinkle with buttered crumbs, dust lightly with salt and pepper and bake in a quick oven. The lemon and horseradish may be omitted and a few sliced mushrooms added in their place.

Household Helps

Dried Lemon Peel.

DRIED lemon peel cut into small pieces with the scissors is good in fruit cake.

Delicious Onions.

IF fond of onions, try peeling and boiling them until tender, then draining and serving with a rich cream sauce.

Instead of Milk.

WATER in which rice, macaroni or potatoes have been cooked is as good as milk for making gravies.

Peeling Tomatoes.

TOMATOES are easily peeled by first washing and then holding them over a gas flame until the skin cracks.

Fruit Juice in Frosting.

ANY fresh fruit juice, except pine apple, and any cooked or canned fruit juice, including pineapple, may be used in boiled frosting. When such juice is used, however, the cream of tartar should be omitted.

By Mary Lee Swann,
The Well-Known Writer and Lecturer on Cooking.

Mutton Chops in Casserole.

SAUTE 6 chops in butter or drippings until delicately brown. Cut into small cubes 1 carrot, 1 onion and 1 turnip. Brown delicately in a little bacon fat. Put vegetables in baking dish, arrange the chops on them, add water or broth to barely cover the chops and sprinkle with a little salt. Cover tightly and cook gently about 2 hours.

Boned and Stuffed Leg of Mutton.

HAVE the butcher remove the bone from a leg of mutton. Fill the space with bread-crumb dressing, well seasoned with salt, pepper and poultry seasoning. Sew into shape. Roast about 2 hours, basting frequently with hot fat. Serve with string beans, white turnips or potatoes, and currant or wild plum jelly, banana fritters or baked or fried bananas.

Boiled Mutton.

PUT a leg or shoulder of mutton into a vessel of boiling water and let boil about 10 minutes. Cook gently until tender. When half done add salt and a small onion, 1 carrot, 1 turnip and a stalk of celery. Remove the mutton from the broth, spread with butter sauce and sprinkle with finely chopped parsley. Serve with drawn-butter sauce seasoned with chopped pickles.

Canned Mutton.

CUT mutton in small pieces and boil gently for ½ hour. Remove the superfluous fat and gristle and pack the mutton cubes into sterilized jars. Fill the jars to overflowing with the stock in which the mutton was boiled and which has been reduced about half by boiling. Adjust the rubbers and tops and cook 4 hours in a steamer or water bath.

How to Tell Whom You Really Love

WE should recognize the great need for a woman to know herself and her suitor before she consents to marriage, says Professor Walter M. Gallichan in "The Psychology of Marriage."

She should be assured not only that the lover is a good man, but also one of understanding and sympathy. For a model of rectitude may still be deficient in the essential qualities that make a sympathetic, affectionate mate.

We do not marry virtues alone; we marry a being who embodies certain ill-defined, but very powerful, mesmeric attractions.

If a suitor's hand-grasp or kiss does not whisper of heaven to a woman's heart he is not the lover of her natural desire. Rarely, if indeed ever, is revulsion of physical contact welcome.

Every young girl should learn that the man whose touch conveys no meaning to the soul is not the ideal mate, however much she may esteem him.

Conjugality is not simply intellectual companionship. It is the union of body as well as spirit. To live for long years in the closest of intimacies with a man whose handshake is meaningless, must be a penance to any woman of natural instincts.

The "mysterious sense of touch," as Milton terms it, is probably an almost unerring guide in love selection. It is not man's beauty of countenance, bodily grace and moral or intellectual attributes that make the strongest and final emotional appeal to woman, but his power, vigor and force. And it is these qualities that a woman consciously or semi-consciously divines through a man's caress.

Deep down in the nature of woman is the desire not only for man's protective strength, but for the virility that serves the race. The wish may never come into full consciousness in the brains of some women, but it is there nevertheless, and works as a determinant in the choice of a lover.

Of all the tragedies that threaten marriage none can be more poignant and terribly significant than the shrinking of a sensitive woman's heart at the approach of the husband. This keen tactile sensitivity of women should be studied by them with much closer attention, for their happiness in love is greatly influenced by it.

Any manifest repugnance against touching the body of another is a perfectly natural phenomenon, and may be accepted as a sure indication of a lack of reciprocal emotion between lovers. The kiss that is "sweeter far than aught" can only be enjoyed when the pair of lovers are each sensible of the supreme pleasure of lip contact.

The woman one does not desire to kiss or embrace is not the woman whom nature may be said to wish one to select as a wife. The man who cannot arouse an emotional thrill in the maiden by his caress is not the true mate whom she desires.

How to Drive Flies Away

IT has been discovered that flies are very sensitive to certain odors and that they will take pains to avoid places where they prevail.

Lavender is one of these odors. Buy five cents' worth of oil of lavender at the drug store, mix with an equal amount of water and spray from a common glass atomizer in places where flies collect.

This odor, which flies find so obnoxious that it quickly drives them away, is very pleasant and refreshing to most people. As the mixture is harmless to everything but flies it can be sprayed freely around the dining-room, on the table linen, etc.

Other odors which flies don't relish are those of geranium, mignonette, heliotrope, white clover, honeysuckle and hop blossoms.

A French scientist claims that flies have an intense dislike for blue, and that rooms decorated in this color are much more likely to be free from these dangerous insect pests.

Another good way of getting rid of flies is to mix a tablespoonful each of cream, black pepper and brown sugar. Put this in a saucer and darken the room, except for the one window in which the saucer is placed.

Pyrethum powder furnishes another effective weapon to use against flies. Burning a little of this stupefies them so that they can be swept up and burned.

France And Britain Considering Proposal For Military Political Co-operation

SUGGEST AMERICA JOIN

Combination, It Is Pointed Out, Would Affect Success Of League Of Nations

BY EDWIN L. JAMES

Paris, June 4.—The French Government and, it may be presumed, the British Government as well, will sound the American Government on its attitude toward a proposal for a military and political alliance between France and England.

The French Government places great importance upon the course Washington would take, and indeed the attitude of the Government of the United States may seal or may prevent such alliance. Should Washington regard closer union between England and France as a useful stabiliser in world affairs, that attitude would go a long way toward insuring a formal alliance. Should America look unfavorably upon what might be called an old fashioned bargain and, better still, if America would consent to make the arrangement a three-concerned proposal, which is now being discussed, the dual alliance would certainly not materialise.

No official statements have been made as to the exact state of the project. However, for several days the British press has been advocating a formal arrangement between France and England, and naturally France is always open to proposals which would increase her security against eventual attack by Germany.

OUTLINE OF PLAN

Rough statements of the outline of the arrangement suggest that England would give France a more or less free hand on the continent, in exchange for which France would support England elsewhere. Such a bargain would deeply concern America, for it would mean Washington would in many questions find England and France united, which would affect negotiations to an important extent.

Such alliance would naturally hardly conduce to the success of the present League of Nations nor would it probably tend to the success of any other association of nations, and therefore the future of the present League, as well as all proposals for new leagues, have a bearing on the discussion.

Inasmuch as France's chief consideration in forming her policy is to get security against Germany, the French would much prefer consummation of the Franco-Anglo-American Military Alliance as drafted at the Peace Conference to an alliance with only one other nation.

The Matin tomorrow will publish an editorial by Stephane Lauzanne in which he urges consulting Washington at once. He says that naturally France looks kindly upon an alliance with England from the standpoint of getting security, but adds:

"Neither France nor England won the war alone. It was America which decided the victory. On the morrow of the war all eyes were turned toward these three nations and expected from their common action and union the re-establishment of world peace. From this idea came the famous compact guaranty between England, America and France."

Lauzanne says it cannot now be told how much this compact is worth since America has not ratified it, but he says the alliance with England would be ideal if there were assurance that America would soon join the combination.

"Europe," writes Lauzanne, "can do nothing without agreement between France and England. But the world can do nothing without the collaboration of America. It is said that the Franco-English alliance would be a beam upon which Europe would rest. That is true. But a beam, no matter how strong, has strength only if it rests on firm supports, and the supports of the world are over there on the other side of the Atlantic in the depth of that nation of nearly 110,000,000 souls, which is the most disinterested, most generous and most powerful nation of the world.

"When we speak of an Anglo-French alliance, it is not toward Paris or London we must turn, but toward Washington."

PRESS DIVIDED ON PROPOSAL

The French press is somewhat divided on the proposal. The Petit Parisien today rather favors a formal alliance, pointing out that France seeks security which England could give, whereas England seeks consolidation of her Empire which France could help attain. In return for the aid England would give France on the Continent France would aid England in other parts of the world.

However, the Temps does not look kindly on the proposal on the ground that France would be called on not only to maintain order in Europe, but also to help maintain order in other parts where her interests would be secondary.

There is no denying that the proposed alliance would be the old style "you scratch my back and I'll scratch yours" kind of arrangement which former President Wilson aimed to make unnecessary by the establishment of international relations on another plane. Europe was willing to make the experiment with the help of America. Without the help of America the new idea will not live its life.

Europe thought a few months ago American participation in world affairs was not to be hoped for. But today Europe is not so sure of what America will do. If America takes a role in the international business the prime reason France has for signing alliances would largely disappear because of the lessening chances of Germany undertaking a war of revenge.

Hecatomb Of Horses Are Sacrificed To Mesopotamia

London, June 15.—Animal lovers are shocked by a statement in the Commons by Mr. Churchill that the reduction of the British forces in Mesopotamia is equivalent to a sentence of death on thousands of horses. The present establishment requires 47,000 horses, but when the garrison is cut down 17,000 will be enough and this, in the words of the Colonial Secretary, involves "wholesale destruction of great numbers."

Officially it is declared there is nothing else to be done if economy and humanity are to be observed. Many of the light horses have been sold in Mesopotamia but the trouble is to know how to dispose of the heavy draught animals. The surplusage, The Evening News points out, is really immense. In all London and the five adjoining counties there are today only 99,000 horses and here are 30,000 to be got rid of. To transport them to England would cost from £40 to £50 apiece, and pay and maintenance of grooms to look after them would run into another big figure. Even if each fit animal would bring in £100 it would not pay to bring them home for there would surely be a large number which would not fetch anything like that price, and the only alternative seems to be to slaughter them as mercifully as possible.

It would, it is contended, be far more cruel to leave them to the ill treatment they would be sure to get from the natives or to turn them loose in the desert.

Say Stenographers Stole Their Plays

Paris, June 15.—Two French dramatic authors appeared yesterday in the Paris courts to make complaint that some person or persons unknown had stolen their plays and were having them performed without consent and without paying authors fees. The two authors are Paul Armont and Felix Gandera, and the stolen plays were, when played in Paris, entitled "l'Ecole des Cocottes" and "Le Coucher de la Marie."

The curious thing about the theft is that neither play has ever been printed. Only the author's copy, the prompt copy and the actors' separate parts are known to exist, and the authors allege that the thieves were shorthand writers who attended the performances and made complete notes not only of the text but of all the business. Then they sent the text to Greece, where the plays were immediately staged, and from which they were carried to Constantinople and Egypt and played successfully in French.

How they are going to stop performances of the plays and collect the fees for the authors is now puzzling the Judges in charge of the case.

Expect Tsai To Solve Quarrel With Educators

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 12.—In spite of the efforts of Mr. Fan Yuan-lien, ex-Minister of Education, to bring about a compromise in the educational dispute, satisfactory both to the Government and the teachers, there are still many obstacles to the conclusion of a settlement.

The Government is pinning its faith to Mr. Tsai Yuan-pei, the Chancellor of Peking University, who is due shortly in Japan on his way back to China from his visit to France and America.

It is believed that when he arrives in the capital he will soon find a way to put an end to the dispute.

Gaynor Bound Over To Higher Court

S. B. Gaynor, the Chinese Maritime Customs employe who has been undergoing a comissioner's preliminary examination on a charge of having assaulted a Chinese chauffeur outside the Del Monte Cafe on the early morning of July 11, was bound over to the U. S. Court for China for trial yesterday afternoon.

Gaynor's defense of absolute alibi for the time at which the assault was committed, was held, after the taking of contradictory testimony, to leave sufficient doubt to warrant his being bound over to appear before Judge C. S. Lobingier. His bond was fixed at $250.

Various employes of the Western Garage company, the Del Monte Cafe, and the accused and his friends testified yesterday. Witnesses for the claimant testified that Gaynor was at the Del Monte at or about 1 a.m. on Monday, that he had assaulted the chauffeur as charged, and that he had later sought to settle the case quietly by payment of damages to avoid certain publicity.

Gaynor, on the stand, maintained that he had not been at the Del Monte on the night of the assault, but instead had begun duty on the steamer Fengtien as customs inspector at 1 a.m. Monday. He explained that his offer to settle with the garage company and the chauffeur was prompted by a desire to avoid publicity for fear of losing his position. He thought some of his friends must have used his name on the chit.

At the conclusion of the hearing Mr. J. W. Schoenfeldt, for the defense, submitted that a complete alibi had been established, but Commissioner F. J. Schuhl ruled that sufficient evidence had been adduced to warrant him binding the accused over.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 12.—The Enemy Property Bureau, under the chairmanship of Mr. Tsen Yi-chin, has sent telegrams to the provinces and to Harbin, Charbar and the other special administrative districts, stating that, as the Sino-German Commercial Agreement has now been ratified, all German property, sequestrated by the Government must be restored to the original owners, and instructing the local authorities to prepare lists of such property in the areas under their control to be handed to the German authorities.

Another Dairyman Fined For Selling Adulterated Milk

The licensee of the China Trust dairy, 77 Route Dupleix, was fined $50 at the Mixed Court by Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Kwan yesterday for supplying adulterated milk in the International Settlement.

Evidence was given by Inspector Prideaux, of the Municipal Health Department, that he took a sample bottle of milk from one of defendant's distributors on the morning of July 5. It was analysed at the Municipal Laboratory, and found to contain 7.1 percent of added water.

There was a previous conviction against this dairyman, who was fined $15 last August for removing fat from milk. He only received a license in June 1920.

Kwangtung Sends Reinforcements To Yamchow Area

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, July 12.—The Canton authorities are despatching reinforcements to the Yamchow-Limchow-Kaochow-Luichow area, on hearing that General Yang Wing-tai is personally leading the troops there. The troops thus required are being withdrawn from the northern section.

Hongkong, July 13.—It is reported that martial law is being strictly enforced at Bocca Tigris Fort and that precautions are being taken to prevent the escape of the warships there which, it is stated, intended to return northwards owing to heavy arrears in the pay of the crews.

The Cantonese attacking Tengyien are reported to have been defeated and more than 1,000 of them killed. Heavy casualties are reported on both sides.

It is stated that although they have advanced in the center beyond Wuchow, the Cantonese have been driven back in the north and south and may be forced to evacuate Wuchow in order to prevent being cut off.

Important Notice

We have perused an article in the Peking and Tientsin newspapers about the sale of the undermentioned Company to the foreigners by Mr. Chang Kien Hoa (張劍豪), which has much surprised us. As this Company is part of the public estate of the "Chang Tzu" (張氏), no person or persons (Chang Tzu) can sell it individually and privately even the public (foreign and Chinese) cannot purchase without legal action. The business of this Company has been growing steadily, its trustworthiness and good financial standings are well known to the public, therefore, no necessity exists to sell to others or to issue any share script. If any mortgage is made through Mr. Chang with others it is to be considered as his personal affair, and this Company will not be responsible for same.

Catalogued for Sale: 1,854,440 lbs. (about 828 tons).

Offered: 1,463,949 lbs. (about 654 tons).

Sold: 701,950 lbs. (about 613 tons).

Since our last report the London market has again shown signs of weakness. The hopes of an early settlement of the coal strike were shattered after the result of the miners' ballot became known, and a general state of labor unrest is prevailing in the United Kingdom. New York is quiet owing to the instability of exchange and the local market is dull with very little business doing.

At the local auctions today there was a rather poor demand, and prices show an all-round decline.

Out of 653 tons offered 313 tons changed hands.

Awarded Standard Sheet fetched 21 cents which shows a drop of 1½ cents since our last report.

There was quite a fair demand for this grade and for Sheet equal to Standard.

Off Quality Sheet was not wanted.

Awarded Standard Crepe sold at 25 cents; only two lots were sold.

Crepe equal to Standard declined about 2 cents on the week.

Brown, Dark and Barky Crepes realised prices on an average 2 cents below last week's level.

BIRTH

FRANKLIN: On July 13, 1921, at the Victoria Nursing Home, to Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Franklin of 418 Avenue Joffre, a son.

Le Jour de Gloire

JULY 14 has become a day of passionate joy throughout the world. It celebrates the memory of tremendous events; it commemorates two most stirring triumphs of man in his upward struggle for individual freedom.

On July 14, 1789, the people of France, frenzied by a century of wrong, stormed the massive Bastille prison. They smashed the gates, they pried stone from stone with a joy made holy by the juctice of their cause, they razed to the ground the hateful towers symbolic of monarchical tyranny. Each stone hurled from the disappearing structure was an abuse which had been heaped upon a people in the name of kings.

July 14, 1919, saw the greatest triumphal march of history pass in stupendous array under the famous arch, and down the Champs Elysee mid the wonder of the nations assembled.

The awful solemnity of that procession burned indelibly into the mind of every spectator. No Roman eagles carried by legionaries to far flung lines of conquest ever bore such tragic marks of defeat, such symbols of thrilling victory, as were seen on the countless battle flags of the regiments filing by. Caesar returning from Gaul, Titus from Jerusalem, Trajan from Dacia swept down the Sacred Way to receive the laurel crown, but what was that compared to the honor and ovations showered upon the conquering commanders, Mareschals Foch and Joffre, Field Marshal Haig, and General Pershing?

French horizon blue, British, American and Belgian khaki, Italian green and the white of many navies mingled that day in the colossal parade. Bayonets which had driven the German back to the Rhine were twined with flowers by the pretty demoiselles of France.

In the delirium of triumph the rank, file and civilians of all nations sharing in the glory vowed eternal friendship in the name of the dead. Poilus from the Champagne trenches, Tommies who knew Flanders field, dough boys from the ambushed barricades of the Argonne forest swore to remember the cause for which they had fought. And great, lovable France poured out her heart to them, and pledged her national honor to guard and preserve the graves of the world's dead.

It is a thrilling day to remember in these later times of suspicion and international distrust.

The memorable incident of those last rushing days of war which drew closer than ever the bond between France and America, was the capture of Sedan, November 7, 1918. It was there that Napoleon III received the blow which extinguished his empire fifty years ago.

Three crack American divisions, the 1st, 42nd, and 2nd, after smashing the hinge of the line in the Argonne, had raced down the Meuse to the objective of six weeks fighting. They came, they saw, they looked down from the southern heights on to the red roofs of Sedan.

On the road leading north they saw the last of the straggling caissons of the enemy in retreat. Flushed with victory, young in years and experience, they wanted to rush into the town.

Orders came from Lieut.-General Liggett not to march in, but to move off the road, and give the French division from General Gouraud's army the honor of entering Sedan first. French feeling, in response to the delicacy of the American commander, was expressed in an invitation to one American company to be present at the entry.

That evening American pilots, returning from a strafing raid on the fleeing enemy at Montmedy, flew low over Sedan and saw the Tri-Couleur and the Stars and Stripes waving side by side on the citadel.

France faces the future with that optimism which makes her people the most cheerful in the world. Of all the nations at war she suffered most. Her fair northern fields, her industries, her glorious youth .... such was the precious coin she paid for final victory.

As she has always stood for the best in classical culture, so today she is the bulwark against which the tides of political experimentation dash in vain. France makes no cause with Bolshevism for the reason that she requires no such thing. The French people are more satisfied with their form of government than any other peoples are with theirs. Bolshevism runs against a stone wall when it strikes the French border. Peoples or classes looking upon Bolshevism with favor and viewing it as the one panacea for all the ills and evils of government would do well to study the Government of France.

The success of the sanctions, and agreement by Germany upon full payment of the reparations will make France the most securely entrenched nation in Europe financially. Her people are working hard to reduce the exchange on the franc, and have succeeded in raising its purchasing value abroad. The devastated regions are returning to prewar conditions of prosperity, under governmental supervision of rehabilitation.

The French, harder hit by the war than any other people, have effected a recovery which some day will be regarded as the marvel of the age. They have seemed to realise more clearly than others that only by work could the ravagement and devastation of the war be wiped out and a world fit to live in be recreated. And so they have worked unitedly and intelligently while their neighbors quarrelled and fought and went out on strikes. And the net result is that France today is the most powerful nation in Europe. Her exports far surpass her imports, which means that she is growing richer day by day. Her fields carefully tilled by the descendants of the heroic peasantry of 1789 promise a great harvest, her mills and factories are running full shifts. There is no unemployment. Everybody is at work, not only for himself but for his country.

And so, today, with the rest of the world, we raise our hat and extend our congratulations to indomitable France.

Today

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

Readers ask, "Why do newspapers print so much about that miserable Stillman case?" Answer: "Because such cases are valuable in the present, frightening fools, enlightening the public, warning women." They will be valuable in the future, because wise men writing the history of our day will find more solid FACT in the Stillman case than in any half dozen sermons or newspaper editorials.

Ferrero writing history reads the story of the Caesar compelled by public opinion to punish his own daughter for immorality.

We all read about Cleopatra, the "Mrs. Leeds" of her day, who persuaded Marc Antony to run away to her "Love Nest" in Egypt, leaving Octavia, sister of the great Augustus, as fine a wife as any man ever had.

The figures in the Stillman case, with background of roof gardens, house boats, stock tickers, and getrich banking enterprises, are dull compared with "Nilus mud" and the asp. But they will enable those that write history in future to judge this particular period with its too much money and too little responsibility, making fools of those that have no brains, no education, no self-respect.

Workingmen often oppose government ownership of railroads and other necessities on the broad, foolish ground that workmen and unions would lose independence.

Just now eighty thousand employes of privately owned express companies learn that their wages are to be cut twenty-five percent. They were raised in war, now they go down.

Employes of government owned post office also had wages raised, and those wages are not reduced, and won't be reduced Observe that.

Parents that frighten their children with suspended sentences might think this over.

A boy of fifteen brought back from public school a report card not very creditable. His conduct was good, but the teacher had written on the report "Danger," meaning that he might not graduate.

His mother scolded him, then said ominously. "Your father will have something to say to you when he comes home." But the father had nothing to say. For when he got home the boy was dead. He had taken from the overcoat of his father, a policeman, an automatic revolver and had blown his brains out. Death was not as bad as waiting for that "something" that the father would have to say to him.

A child so sensitive, and with courage to face death, probably would have made a useful citizen, more valuable perhaps than many children with "perfect marks." But school methods and a father "with something to say to him later" drove him to suicide.

As soon as she has laid a nest full of eggs, off she goes and fights another female for another husband. Then she deserts her second husband leaving him nothing but tender memories and more eggs. In time she amasses a kind of disconnected harem of husbands. The husbands have all the tender qualities the wife lacks. They hatch the eggs, guard the chicks, and "mother" them.

The Chinese Eastern Railway

Its Present And Future—S.M.R. Competition—II

BY ORRIN KEITH

(Note: This is the second in a series of articles now appearing in The Japan Advertiser. Also watch for the articles from THE CHINA PRESS special correspondent in Siberia, Dr. A. E. Zucker, of Union Medical College, Peking.)

The future of the Chinese Eastern Railway is a question of the highest importance to the Far East Republic and Japan also evinces a keen interest in this matter. Harbin since the railway has been cut off from Russia proper, has been the center of its administration. Unfortunately, because of a conference in Peking, most of the officials were not in Harbin. Mr. Kolovsky, a Russian attorney who formerly represented General Horvat, and who knows the Chinese Eastern from the beginning, more than made up for their absence.

Because of the manner in which they have been chosen, the Russians at present on the board of directors of the railway are reactionaries of the most extreme type. They would, and frequently try to, use the railway for political purposes to the detriment of the Far Eastern Republic and Soviet Russia. By a strange trick of fate, however, the actual management of the road has been placed in the hands of Ostrumov, a trained railroad man who was sent out by the financial interests which control the railroad company to check the disintegration and to restore its efficiency.

ENERGETIC ADMINISTRATION

Ostrumov seems to be inspired with the radical idea that a railroad's function is to haul passengers and freight and that furnishing sinecures for lame ducks and playing politics are matters with which it has nothing to do. He arrived in Harbin on a Thursday a few months ago and, instead of taking the usual rest of a couple of weeks to recover from his arduous journey as was the custom for new officials, he appeared at his office on Friday morning. Harbin rubbed its eyes. What manner of man was this? Such a thing was unheard of!

But this was not all. Ostrumov actually visited all his offices; saw the men who were in charge of them; saw how they were running them. Unprecedented! Then he went down to the shops, gathered the workers together and spoke to them. He told them they must all work for Russia and that honest effort would be rewarded. This was revolutionary! The only relations which former managers had had with the workers was to send gendarmes to arrest any who were complained of.

COMPETITION WITH S.M.R.

Then Ostrumov's training as a railroad man began to make itself felt. He studied the movements of freight, the rates between various places, and he discovered that the rates were so adjusted that very little freight was being hauled by the Chinese Eastern to Vladivostok but a great deal was going to Changchun to be taken from there to the sea over the Japanese South Manchuria Railway and handled in the Japanese port of Dairen. He changed the rates. The Vladivostok traffic went up by leaps and bounds and the Dairen traffic dropped. From the Japanese point of view this was quite unreasonable. Some means must be found to save the situation. They could not change the management of the Chinese Eastern Railway. The solution must lie elsewhere. Perhaps Vladivostok was too peaceful and orderly under their control. Perhaps so. Just at this time the Kappelists moved in and abolished the peace and order. There was no more freight for Vladivostok. And Dairen has again come into its own.

"Ultimately," said Mr. Koslovsky, "the Chinese Eastern Railway must be handled jointly by China and the Far Eastern Republic. It is a Russian investment and a Russian enterprise. China is not in a position to take advantage of the clause giving her the option of purchasing it. More than that it is the chief artery through which flows the life-blood of the 10,000,000 Russians east of the Urals. All Russia's rights and interests in the road have been transferred to the government of the Far Eastern Republic by the Soviet Government. These rights and interests must be cared for in the final adjustment of the road's affairs. China on the other hand, is not in a position to avail herself of the clause which provides for her purchase of the road. Nevertheless the road runs through her territory and is of great importance to her. Her interests must also be protected. Japan's interest is of an entirely different sort. It is chiefly political and military. Insofar as it is commercial it is destructive and aims at the disorganisation of the Chinese Eastern so that it may not effectively compete with Japan's own South Manchuria line. In either case, her interest is entitled to no consideration."

On another problem affecting the Russians of the Far East Mr. Koslovsky's knowledge was of great assistance. This is the question of the abolition of Russian extraterritoriality. Mr. Koslovsky is the one Russian lawyer admitted to practice in the new Chinese courts in Harbin and his knowledge is first hand. He is highly appreciative of the Chinese and entirely in sympathy with their desire to secure complete jurisdiction over all persons within their territory. In theory the abolition of extraterritoriality is wholly commendable.

In practice, however, the present system works a very real hardship upon the Russian in Chinese territory. The Chinese had no written law of their own. Their new code is drawn up after Western models and embodies principles of law with which the majority of Chinese are wholly unfamiliar. The Judges appointed to administer this law have therefore been working under a serious handicap from the very beginning. They are, Mr. Koslovsky believes, absolutely sincere in their effort to be fair and just but the difficulties in the way are almost unsurmountable. The result is most unfortunate for the Russians. Upon accusation by any person, no matter how irresponsible, and without any attempt at verification upon the part of the authorities, Russians are thrown into jail and kept there for months, in some cases as long as six months, before any investigation of their cases can be made.

Even this is not the worst feature of the new arrangement. All proceedings must be translated from Russian into Chinese and vice versa. The problem of securing proper interpreters is a most baffling one. At present the interpreters are employed by the court at a salary of $100 a month. A good Chinese-Russian interpreter in Harbin can get as much as $500 a month from commercial and other concerns. The court interpreters are therefore neither competent nor reliable and in many cases are rankly dishonest. Prisoners, parties, lawyers and judges, are thus alike placed entirely at the mercy of underpaid subordinates.

CHINA'S OPPORTUNITY

The situation thus created is well nigh intolerable and the responsible Russian citizens of Harbin are willing to help in any way possible to remedy the evil. It has even been suggested that Russians in China or the Russian or Far Eastern Government contribute a certain amount toward the expense of the courts so that competent and honest interpreters can be employed. An offer of this sort seems wholly futile, however, because of the appalling loss of face which would result if the Chinese should admit for an instant that they were in need of any assistance or even that the present system was not entirely satisfactory.

In the establishment of commercial and treaty relations with China the Government of the Eastern Republic has announced its desire to deal with the older nation upon the basis of entire equality and to renounce the unequal privileges obtained from China by force or the threat of force under the Tsarist regime. Few problems will require more delicacy of handling, more careful constructive statesmanship upon the part of the leaders of the new republic than this one of the treatment of Russians in China. On the other hand, the treaty Powers will watch with interest China's attempt to demonstrate that she is ready for general abolition of extraterritorial rights, and China has a long desired opportunity to show what she can do, an opportunity which may be wholly lost if something is not done immediately to better the present situation.

We left Harbin in the face of the discouraging announcement by Reuter's agent that we would not be able to reach Chita as the railroad had been cut at Karimckaya the day before by Ungern bands. This news he had just received by telephone from Manchuli so it could be relied upon. The railroad has been cut so many times in the last few months that we went on in the hope that this new dissection would prove no more fasting than the others.

King Henry the seaventh gave a Commission to John Cabot & his three sonnes who setting sayle from the port of Bristol ranged a great part of this unknowne world in the yeare 1497. By them the mainland of North America was discovered: one year before Columbus saw the Continent. Thus from those early days till now the famous port of Bristol has been associated with the sailings of merchants and adventurers. Thence John and Sebastian Cabot and many Merchant Venturers sailed and thither Washington sent his Virginian Tobacco in the year 1759. Famous too through the House of Wills who there for many years have made the "Three Castles" Cigarettes - thence they are shipped to the satisfaction of discriminating smokers all the world over.

This'll Make You Homesick

San Francisco, June 13.—San Joaquin Valley, California's Garden of the Sun, is made up of eight counties—Fresno, Tulara, Kings, Kern, Merced, San Joaquin, Stanislaus and Madera.

Here at a glance may be seen the capital facts connected with this productive region, which covers several hundred square miles and has a larger area than New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Conneticut and Rhode Island combined:

POPULATION

In 1920, over 500,000.

Increase since 1910 census, 58 percent.

California's census increase, 44 percent.

ACREAGE

Total 19,200,000 acres.

Under cultivation, 9,000,000 acres.

Number of farms 33,767.

San Joaquin Valley has now only 1 person to every 17 acres capable of cultivation.

IRRIGATION

Cheapest and most extensive gravity system in the world.

Cost of irrigation, less than $1 per acre.

PRODUCTION

San Joaquin Valley's vine crops alone last year were valued at $92,500,000, of which raisins represented $55,800,000. California crop statistics show that San Joaquin Valley produces 90 percent of the State's raisins, 80 percent of the figs, 60 percent of the grapes, 38 percent of the barley, 40 percent of the oats, 35 percent of the wheat, 61 percent of the rye, 20 percent of the corn, 67 percent of the kaffir corn, 24 percent of the hay and forage, 35 percent of the potatoes, 77 percent of the sweet potatoes, 26 percent of the vegetables, 10 percent of the dry beans and 50 percent of the butter and cheese. Millions of additional wealth are produced annually in the Valley in peaches, almonds, walnuts, olives, citrus fruits, berries, melons, sugar beets, tomatoes, cotton, honey and tobacco.

LAND VALUES

Fruit and alfalfa land under irrigation, $100 to $350 per acre.

Wheat land, between $75 and $100 per acre.

Grazing land, $10 to $25 per acre.

Land in citrus belt, $200 to $250 per acre.

Producing peach orchards, $500 to $1,000 per acre.

Producing apple orchards, $500 to $800 per acre.

Producing citrus groves, $1,200 to $2,000 per acre.

Producing fig orchards, $900 to $1,500 per acre.

Producing olive orchards, $700 to $1,200 per acre.

Improved alfalfa land, $300 to $500 per acre.

TOURIST ATTRACTIONS

Three of California's four national parks are in the heights watching over San Joaquin Valley—Yosemite, Sequoia and General Grant—with their Big Trees and panoramic stretches.

Kings and Kern River Canyons, declared by John Muir and others to be superior in sheer splendor either to the Yosemite or the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

Beyond, where the headwaters of the San Joaquin, Kings and Kern Rivers begin, is the vast Sierra Nevada vista, standing comparison with the Swiss Alps.

Mount Whitney, nearly 15,000 feet above sea level, the highest point of land in the United States, looks down on the cultivated beauties of the Garden of the Sun.

The Spectator

THE NEED OF STATESMANSHIP IN BUSINESS

Labor and capital are not, either of them, going to prosper so long as they keep suspecting, hating, abusing and fighting each other.

What they need, on both sides, is some broad-minded statesmanship that will bring them together in co-operation for their mutual advantage.

There is no greater economic heresy than the creed that the laborer and capitalist are necessarily and from the nature of the case opposed.

They both draw their profit from the same source, the public. And it stands to reason that they will get more from the public if it is prosperous than if it is poor, and get more by working together in intelligent team-play than by spending their forces in pummeling each other all over the place.

We all want prosperity. Only prosperity can employ labor and pay big wages. Only prosperity can win the capitalist to invest to make production possible.

The world is crying for capital. We need money for housing. We need money for harnessing our vast natural sources of power by hydroelectric development. We need money for mines, public utilities and railways.

That is what the high rates of interest mean. When France, Belgium and Switzerland offer government securities on an eight percent basis it means the need is desperate.

Most people have a very hazy notion of what capital is. It is not represented by a few bloated millionaires. It comes from the savings of the millions of common people. Cliques of rich men may manipulate it, but they do not own it.

And the problem is not to smash a handful of bankers who are tying up capital, but to induce the multitude to let go of what they are hoarding and invest it in the industries of the country.

Labor leaders ought to see this and formulate their demands so that they will not be merely demanding monotonously "more wages and less working hours," but so approach the problem as to stimulate and not choke production.

Nothing can save the world but production. Every strike and lockout cripples production and reacts upon the workers themselves, for if business cannot prosper they can get no wages at all.

Employers are too hasty with their ultimatums and threats to close down. And labor unions are too quick on the trigger with their strikes.

There is too much bunk about high principles and human rights and all that, when, after all, it is a matter of business adjustment that confronts us, and one which calls for patient, self-restrained and courteous understanding and simple fair play rather than for heroics and high-sounding eloquence.

We are building little, if any, new railway mileage. We constructed in 1920 less than in the average year of the five years 1840-1845. At the rate of 1920 it will take eight years to increase our railway mileage by one percent.

Yet the country is growing prodigiously. We can do no more business than the railroads can handle. Railroads cannot be built without money. Yet there is very little inducement these days to invest in railways, when in 1920 the roads were allowed to earn for the stockholders but one-sixtieth of what the wage regulations allowed the railway workers.

What ails everybody is short-sightedness and narrowness. We look too intently for the immediate advantage. Never was there a time in the history of our country and of the world when there was more needed in the seats of power broad and unselfish statesmanship.

Upon the very edge of prosperity, all willing to work and eager for the word Go, we cannot advance because we distrust one another; we cannot believe in and work with one another.

"Where there is no vision the people perish."
